Before you can share a life well, it helps to know your own. This short book starts with you. Where did your way of seeing things come from: the home you grew up in, the old rules, the things life taught you? How are you wired today: your energy, your weather, the words that land and the ones that sting? And who are you becoming, one small step at a time? Along the way it explains how feelings work, why your worth is not a score, why personality is more like a set of dials than a box, and how to find what matters to you. Every chapter has everyday scenes, words you could use and one small thing to try this week. Nothing here is a test. Read it on your own, at your own pace.

Self-discovery

Where your lens came from, who you are now, and who you are becoming

Start with yourself: your history, your wiring, your feelings, your worth and what matters to you.
