Meet Tidbit and Sugarfoot

Tidbit

Tidbit is the quick, curious pup with the black mask, the folded ears, the tan socks and the collar. Zoom first, look second.

Sugarfoot

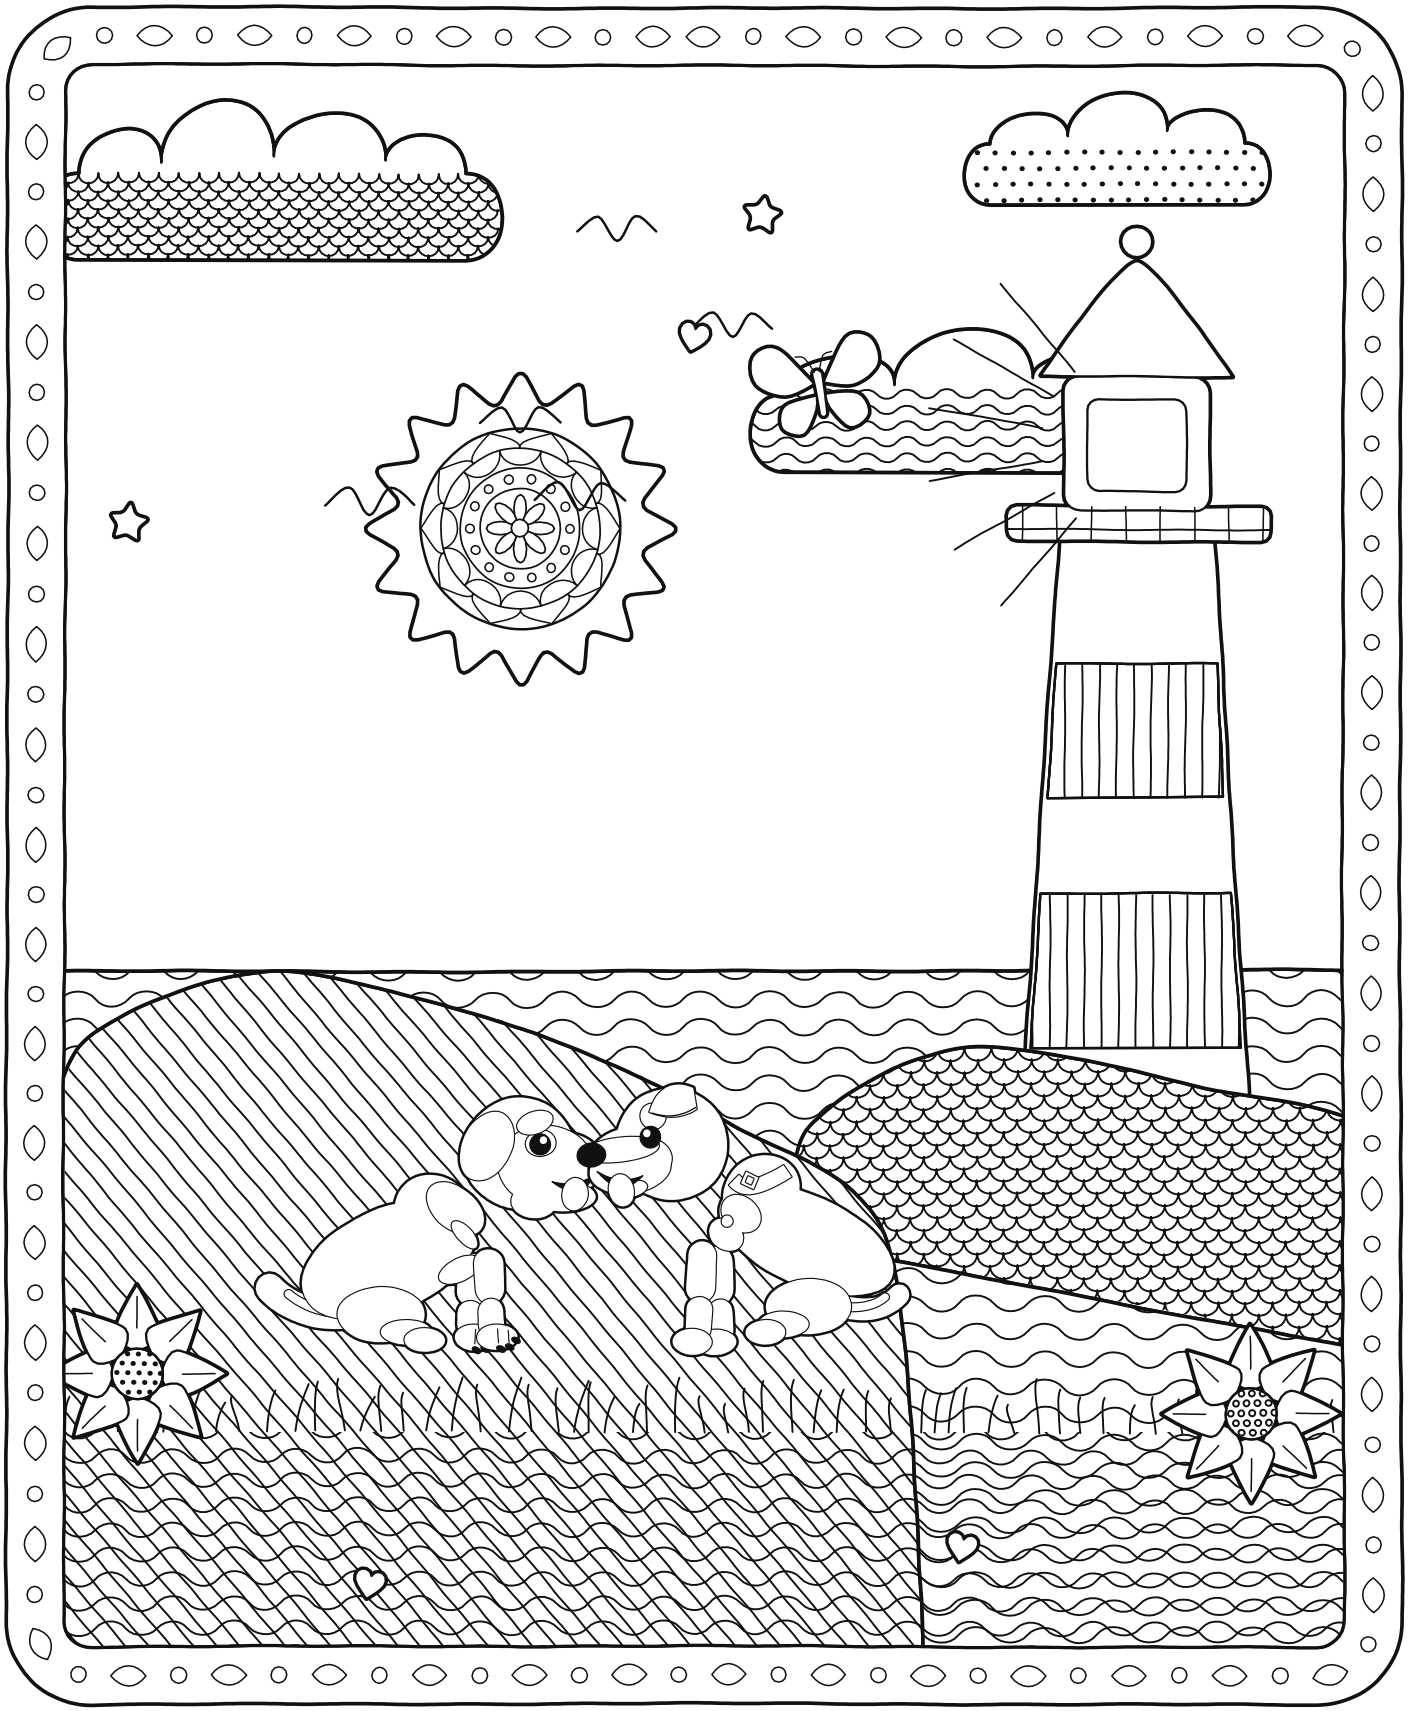

Sugarfoot is the steady, gentle pup with the long, soft ears, the tan face, the white toes and the best hugs.

Before you begin

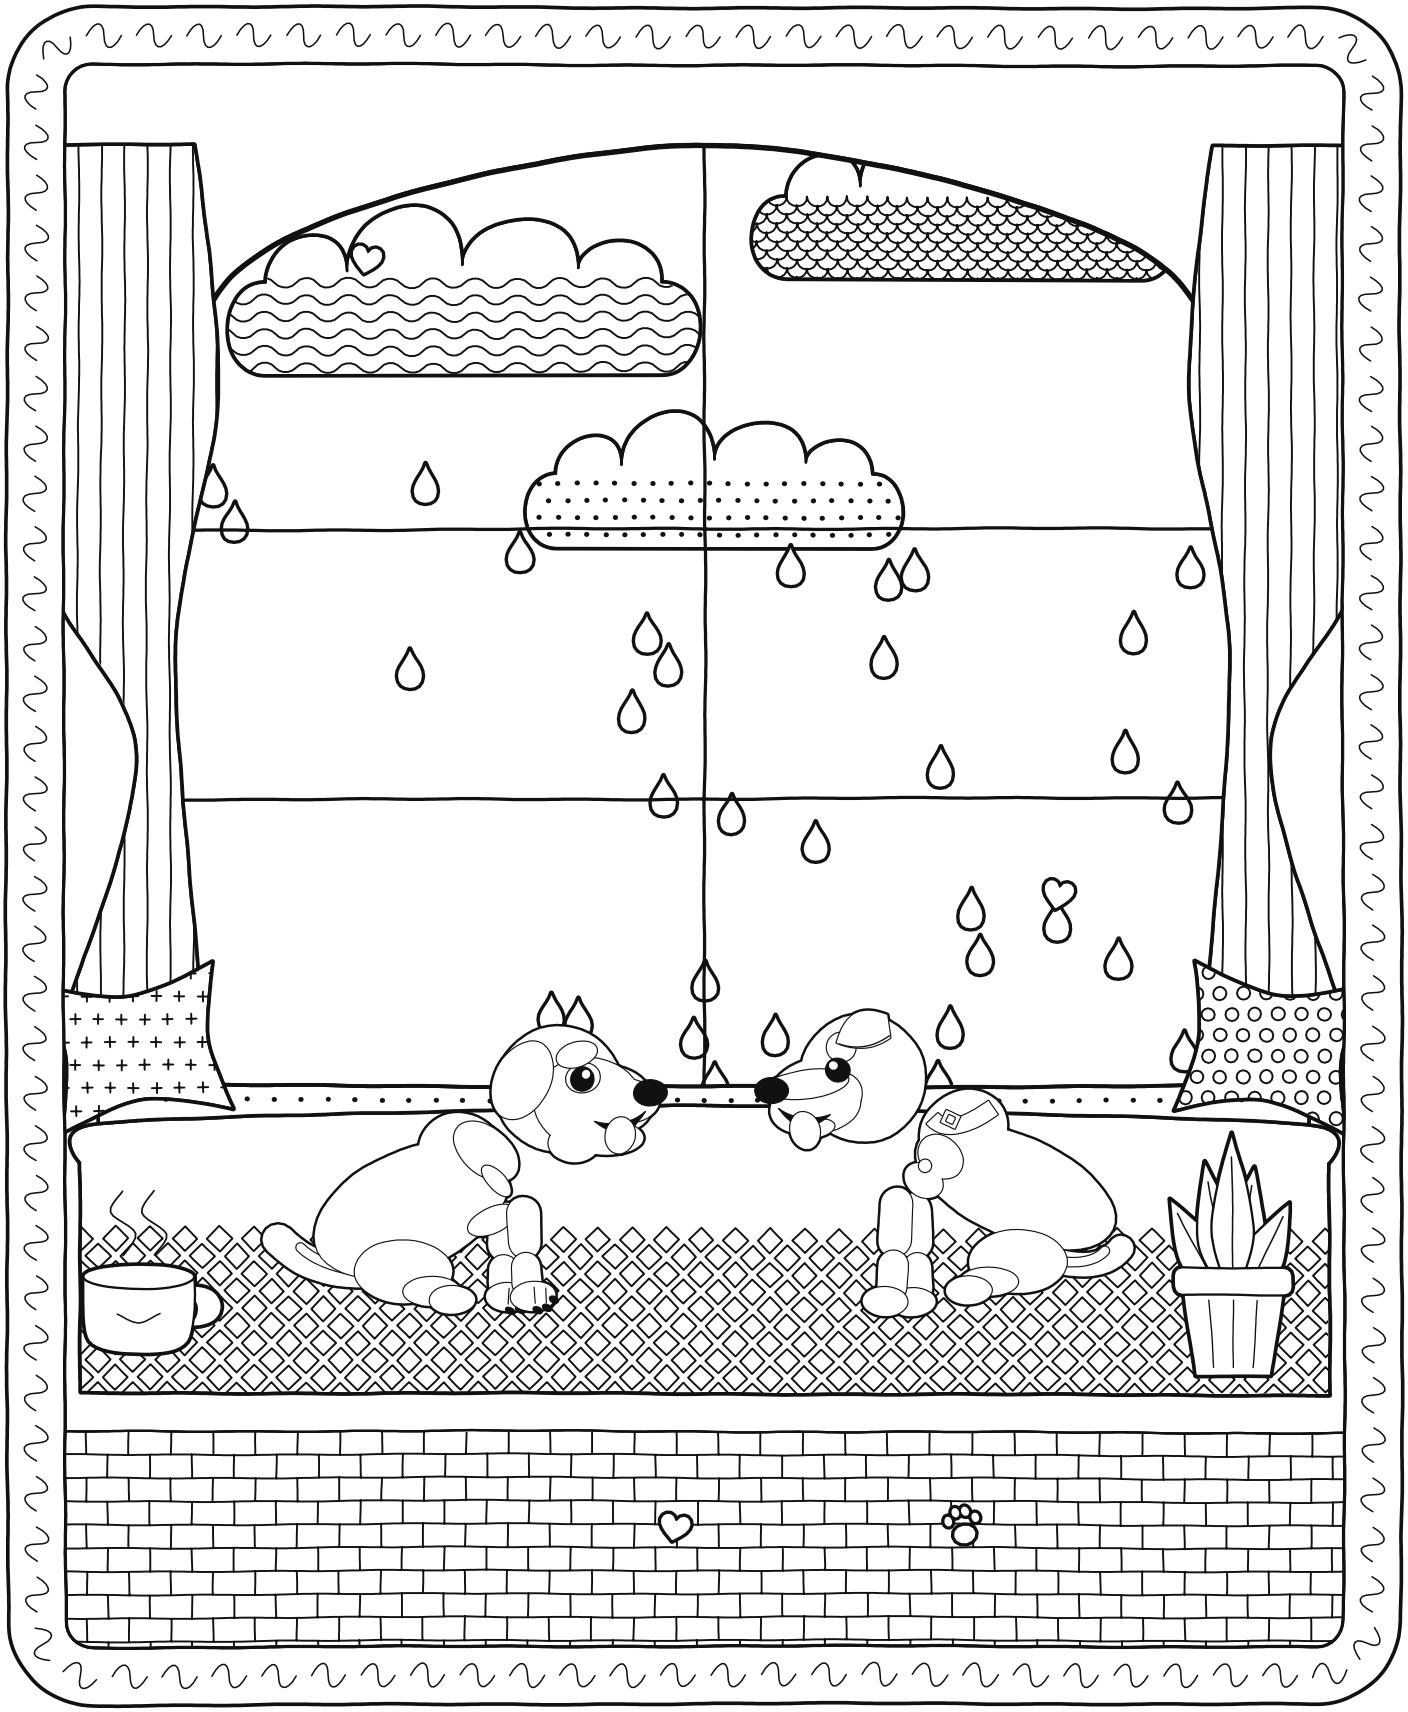

Print the pages on one side of the paper so markers stay put, and a sheet of paper under the page helps too. Take your time, color a whole scene or just one pattern, and read the short calm prompt at the bottom of each page.

Color test

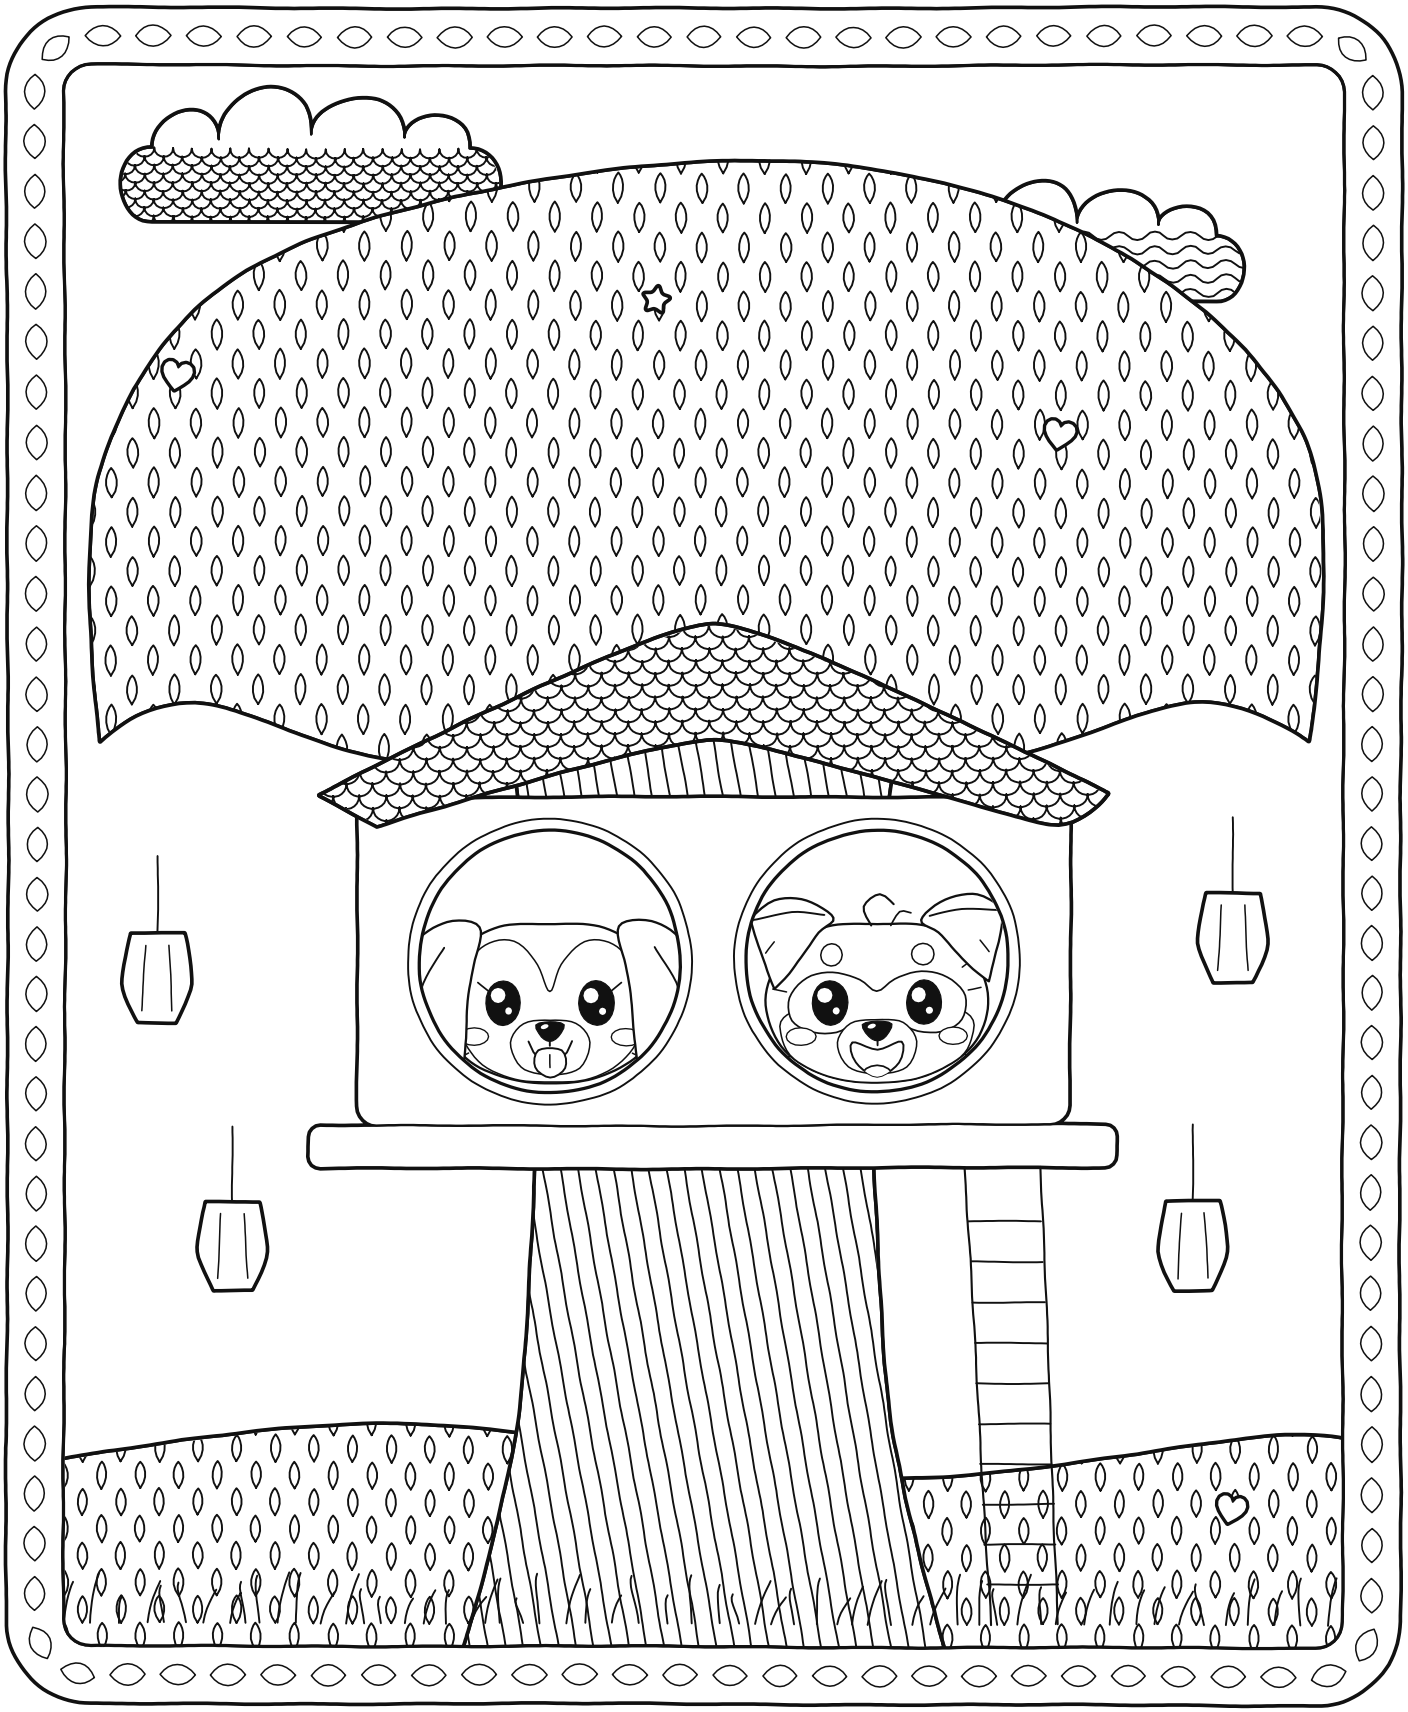

Try your pens and markers here.

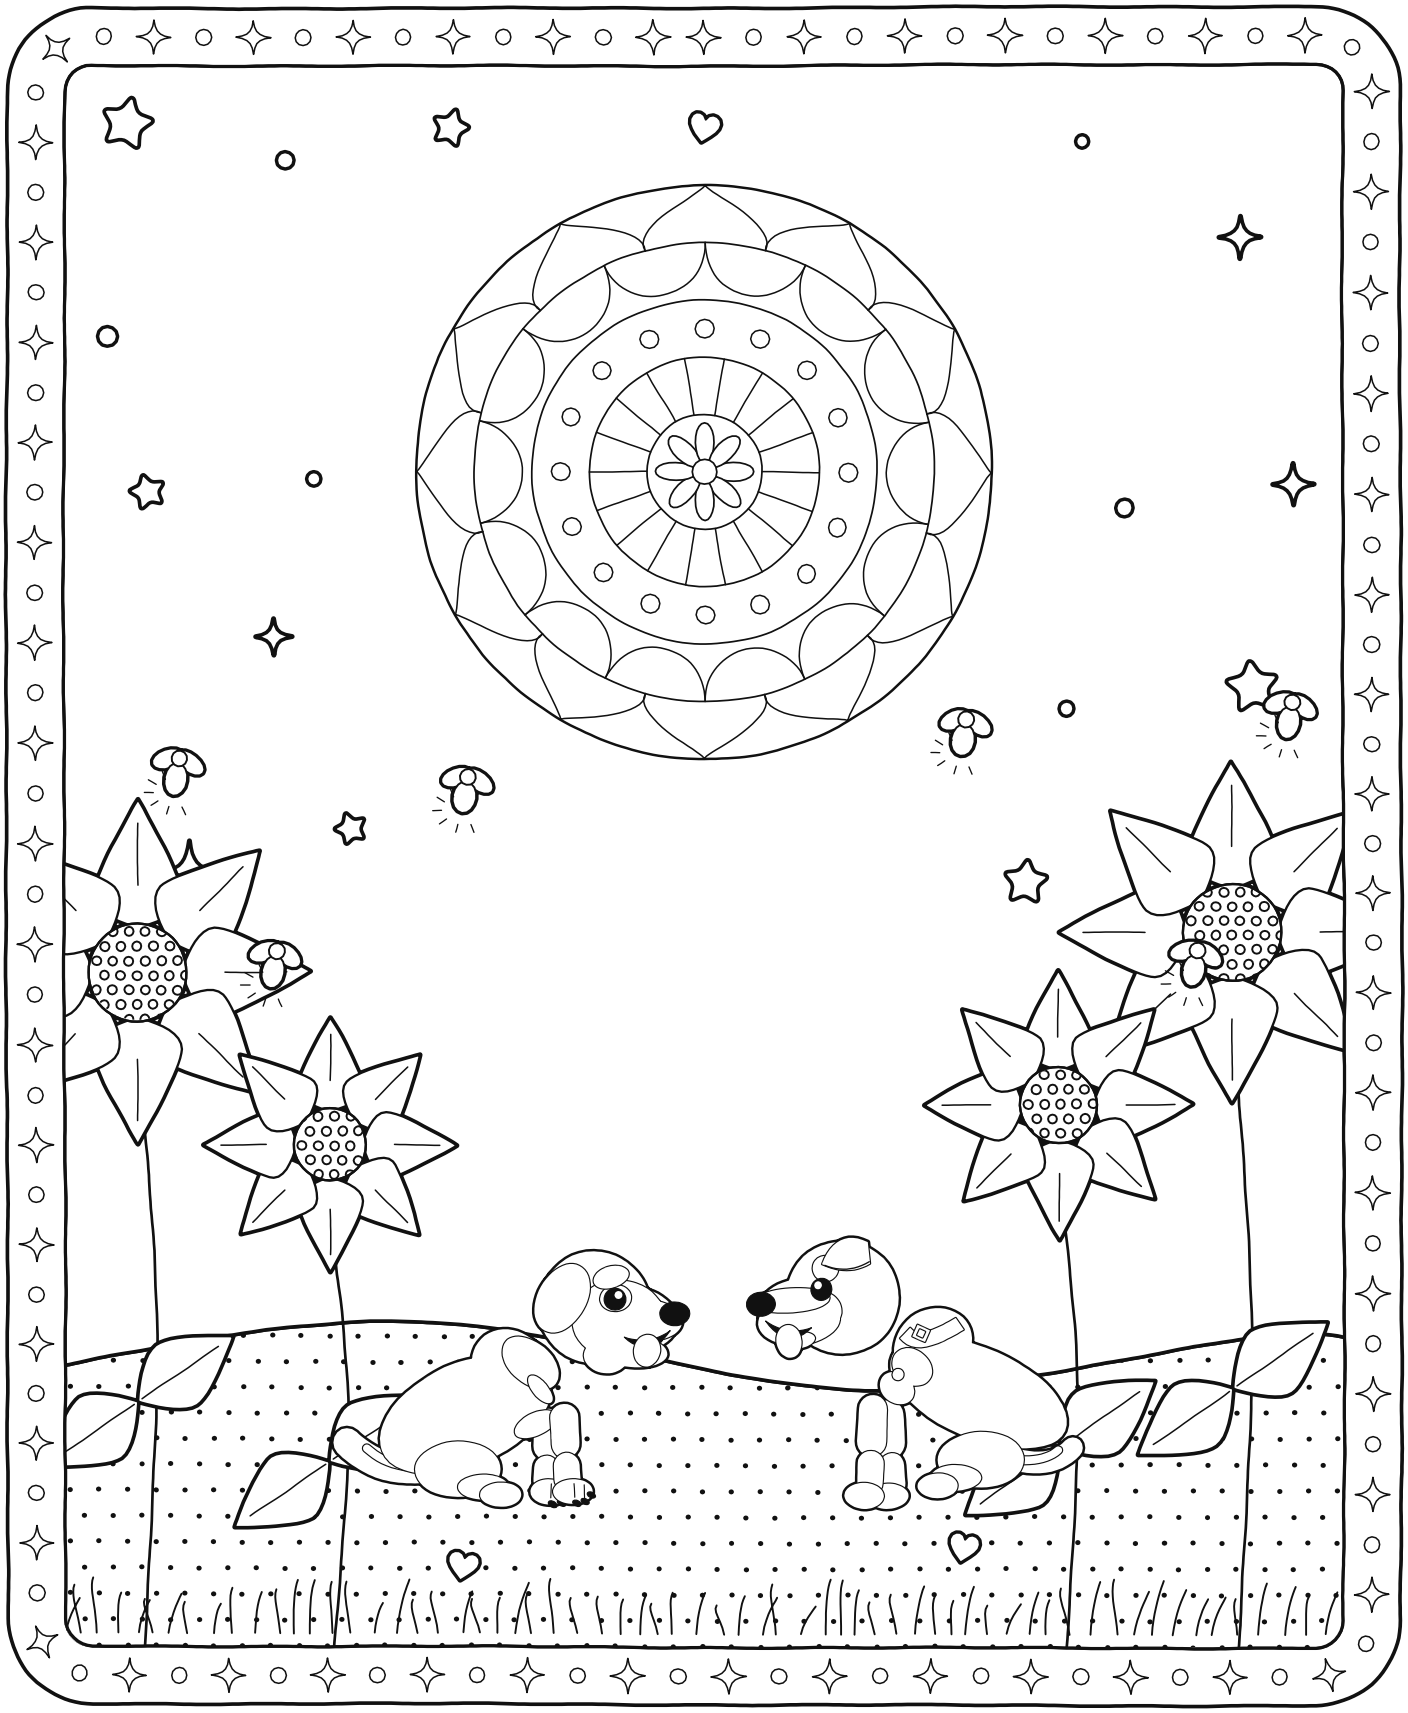

Breathe in while the light turns. Breathe out as it passes.

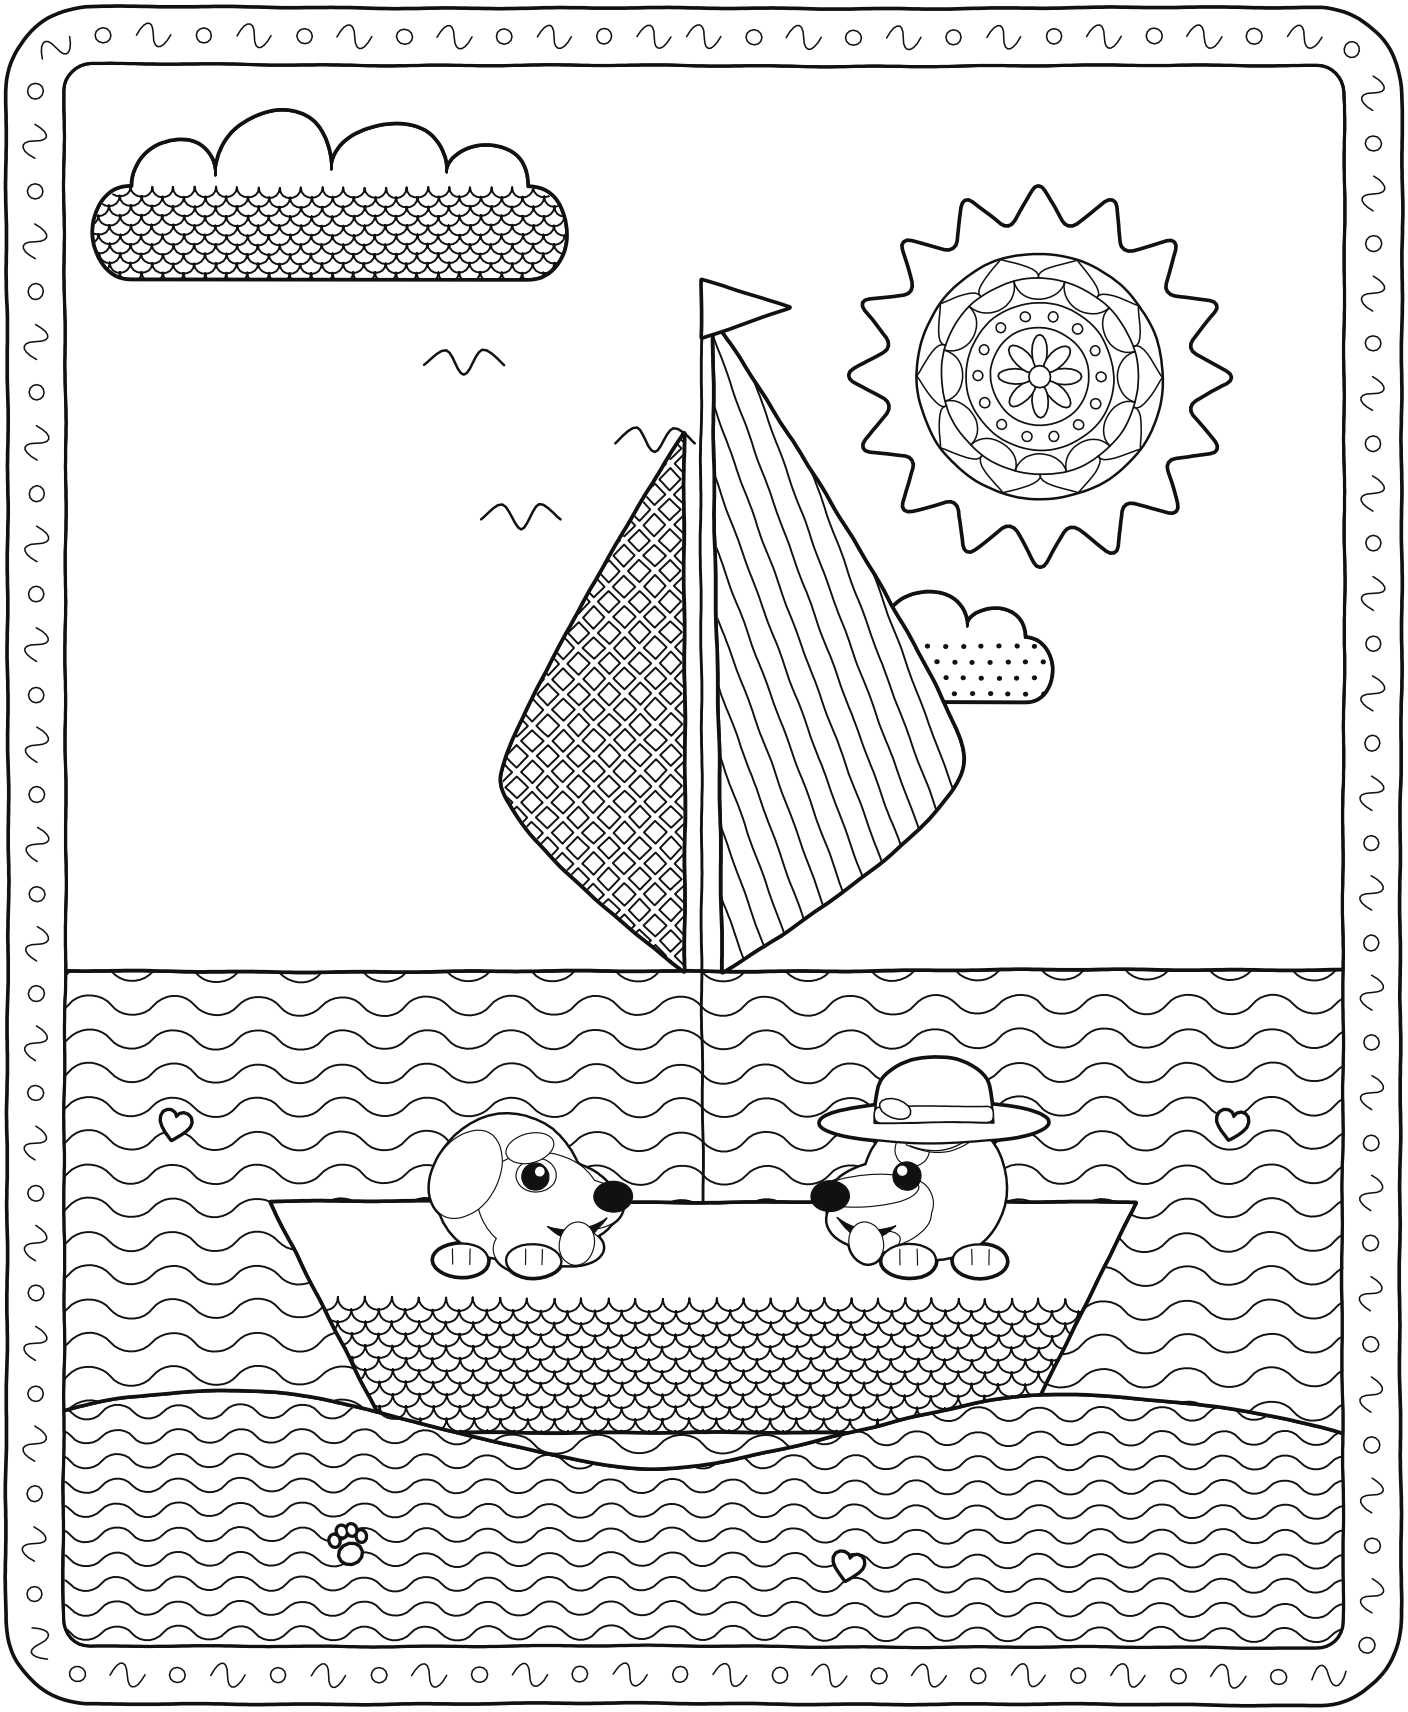

Listen to the rain. Let your shoulders drop.

Climb slowly. Rest at every branch.

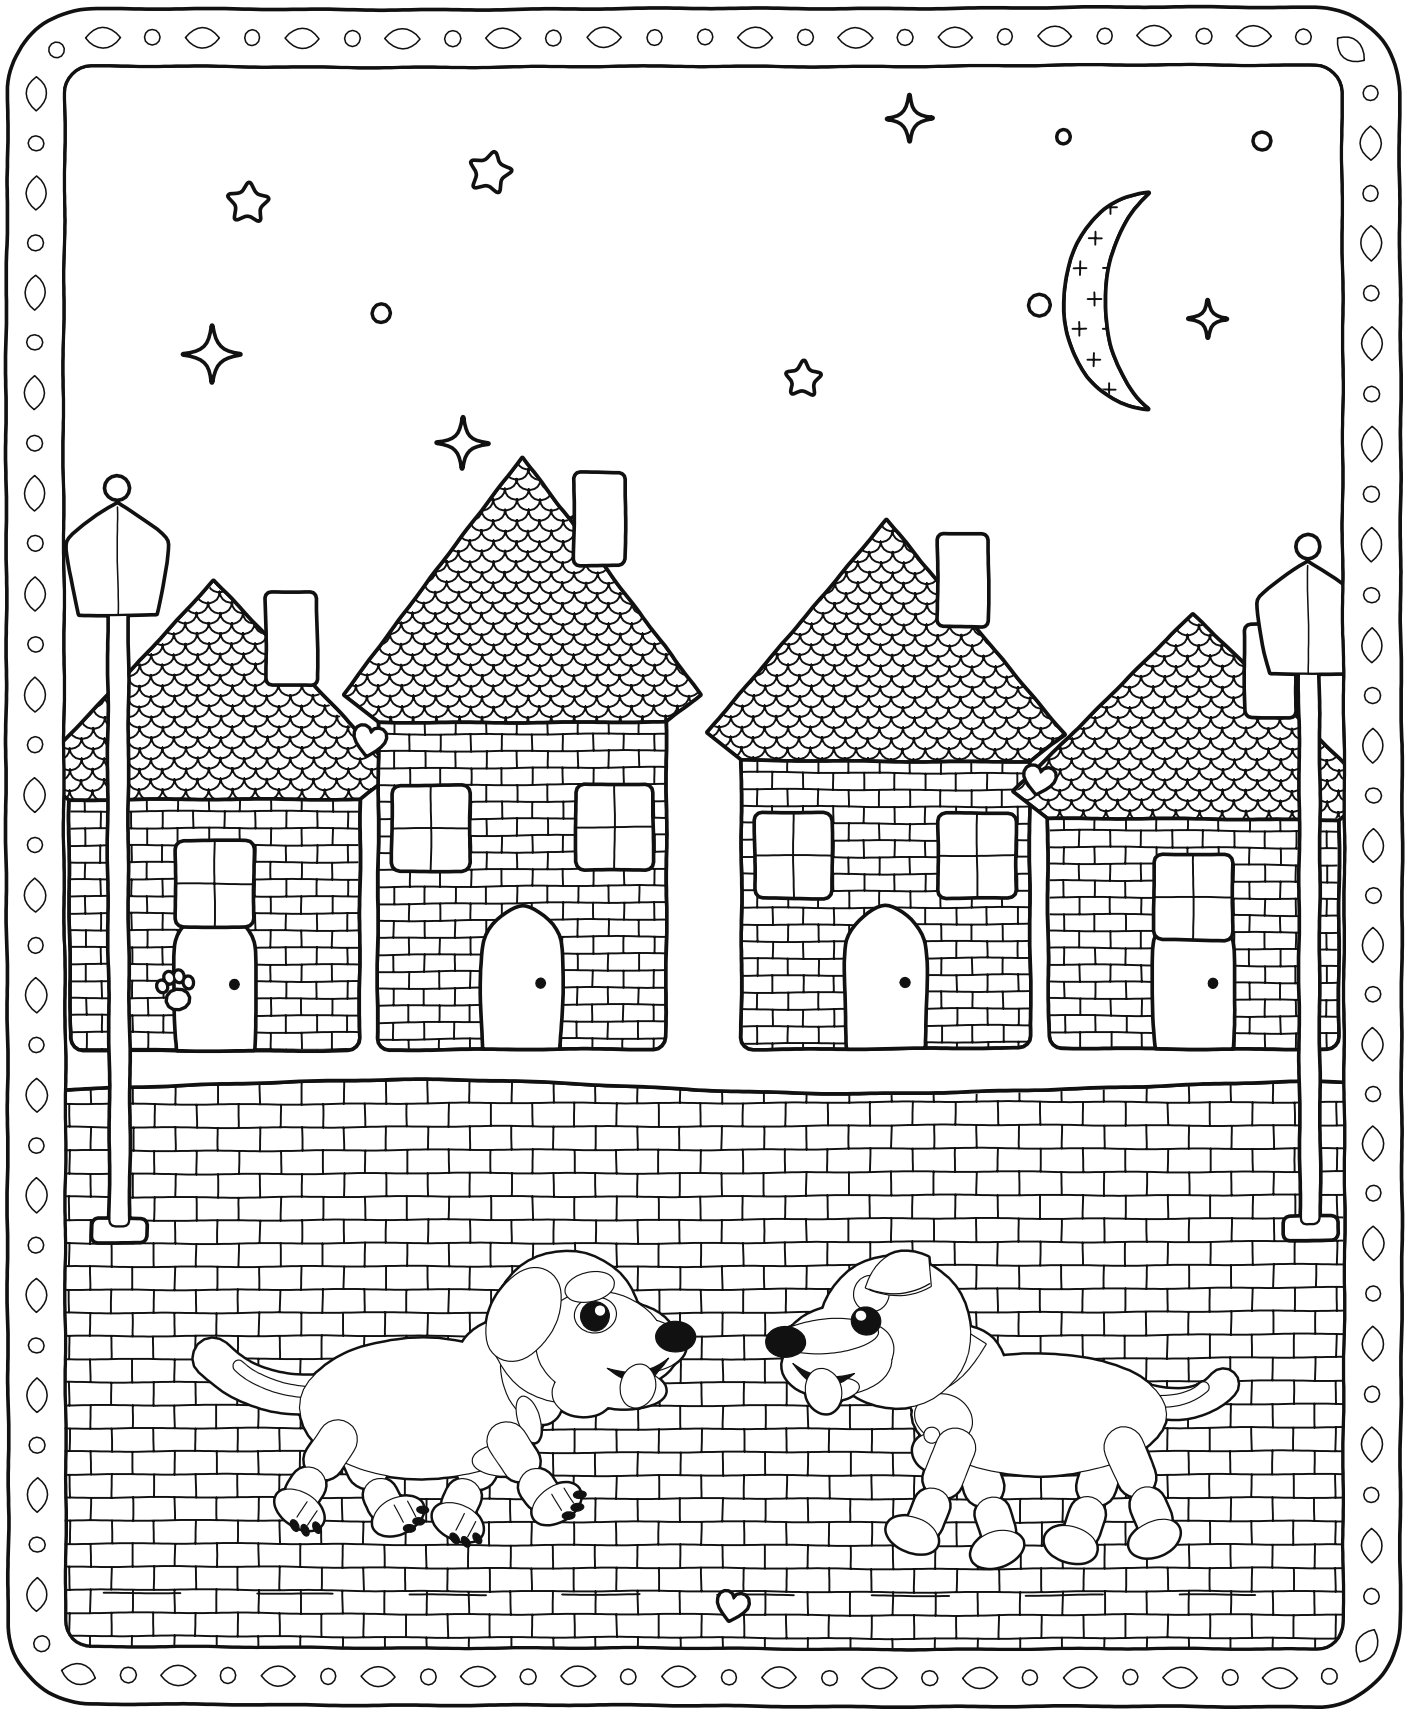

Breathe in the cool night air. Breathe out the day.

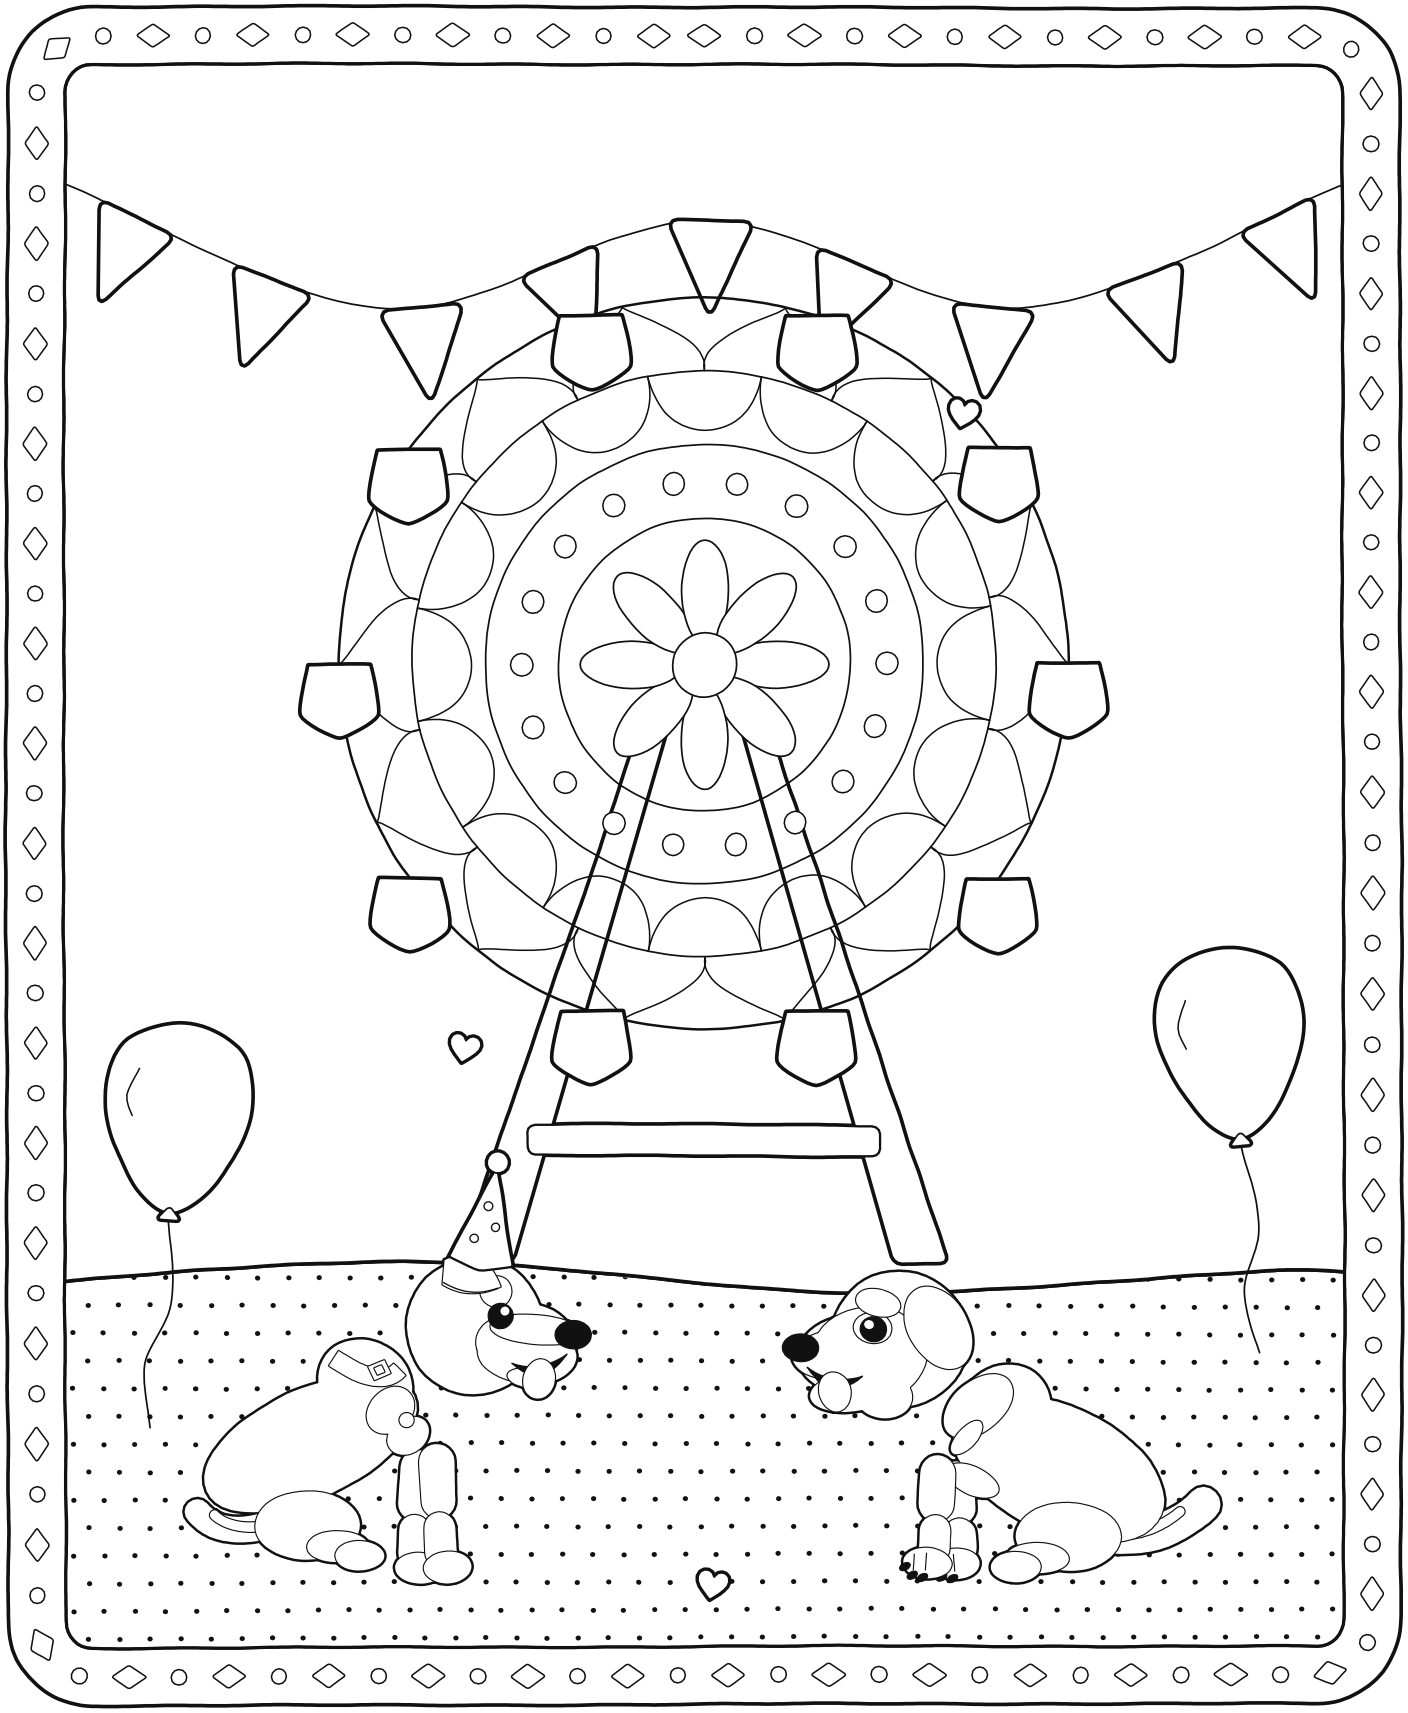

Let the waves carry one worry away.

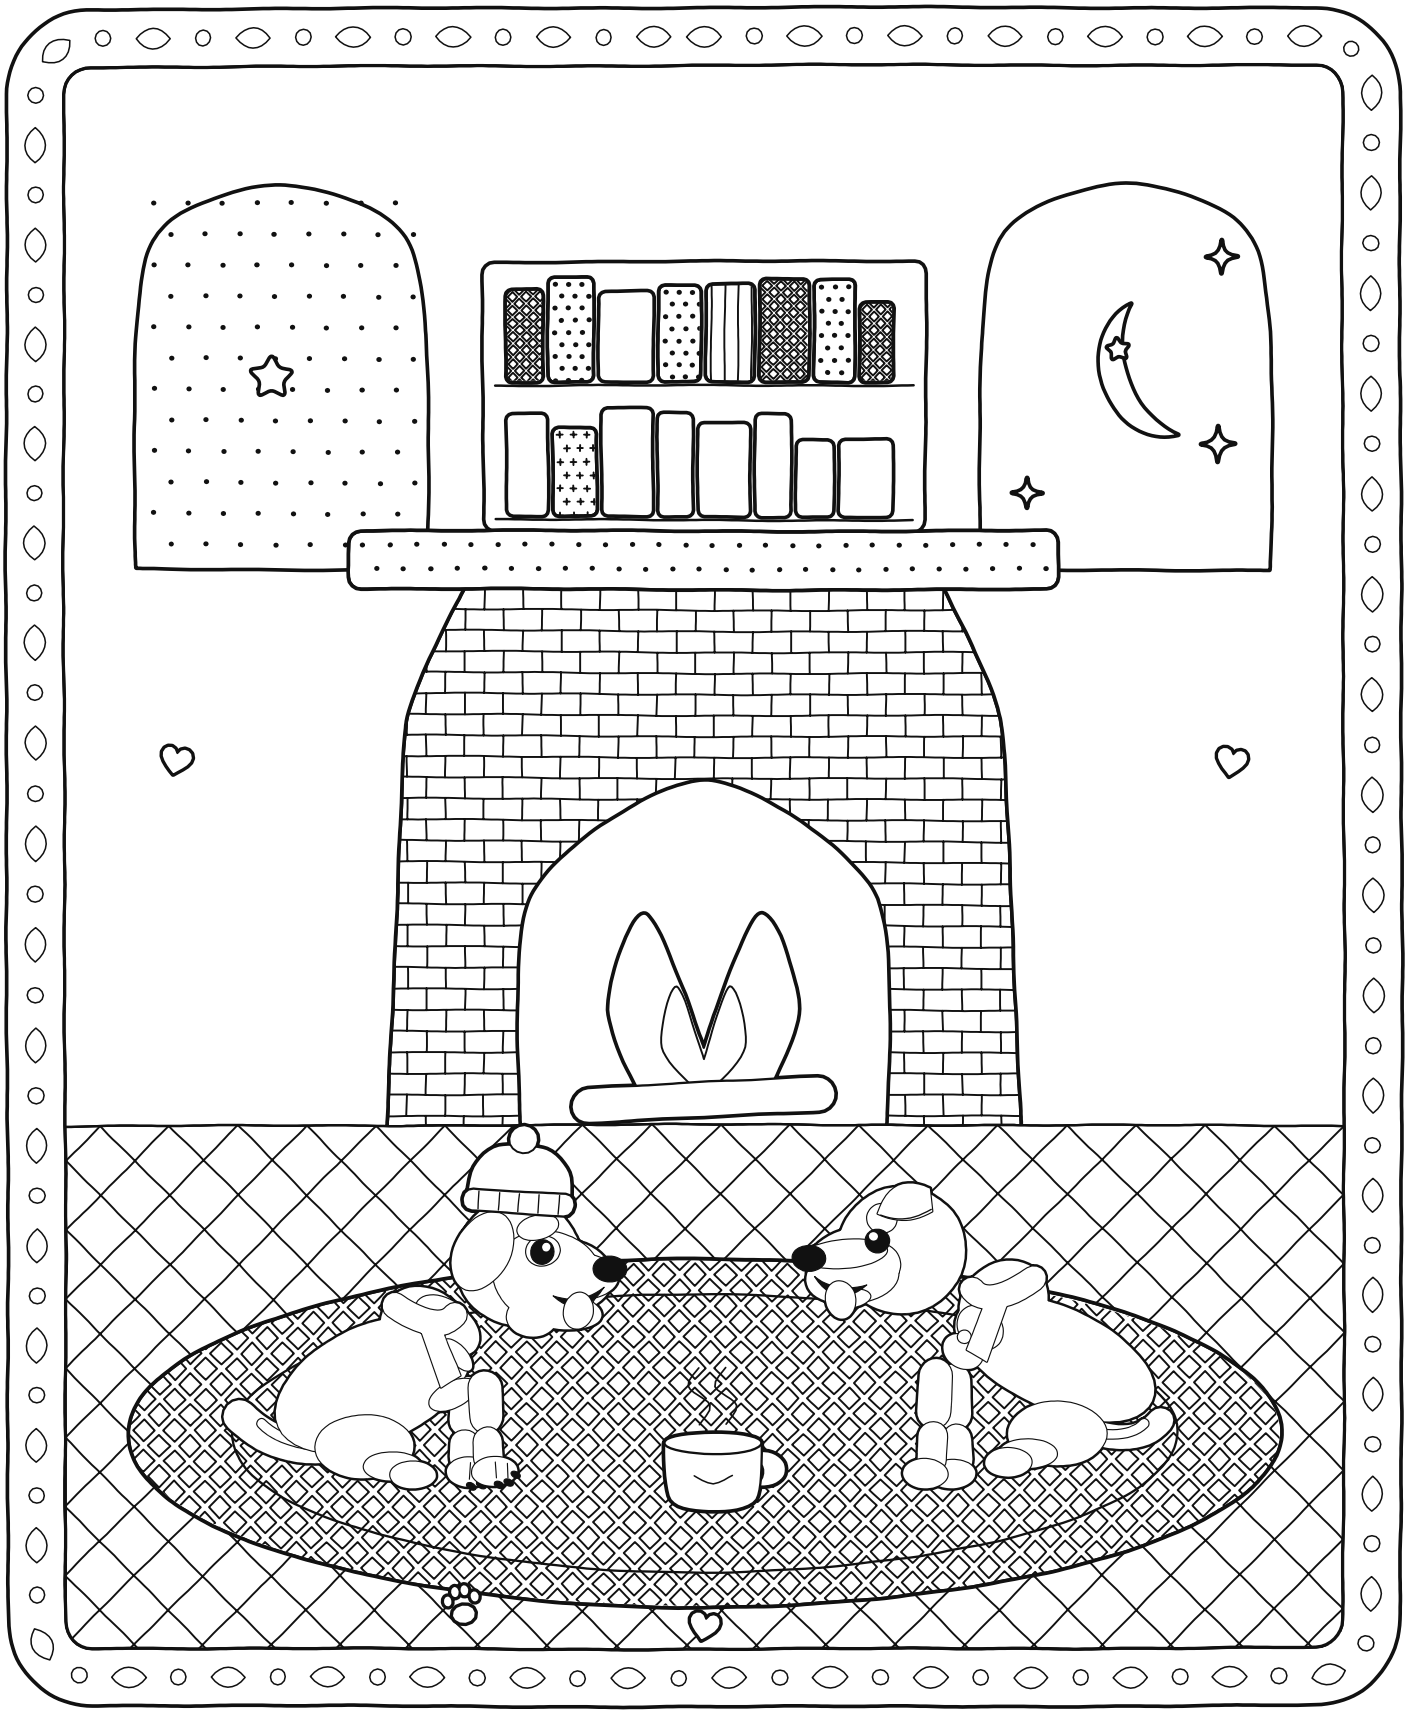

Look up. The sky is bigger than any worry.

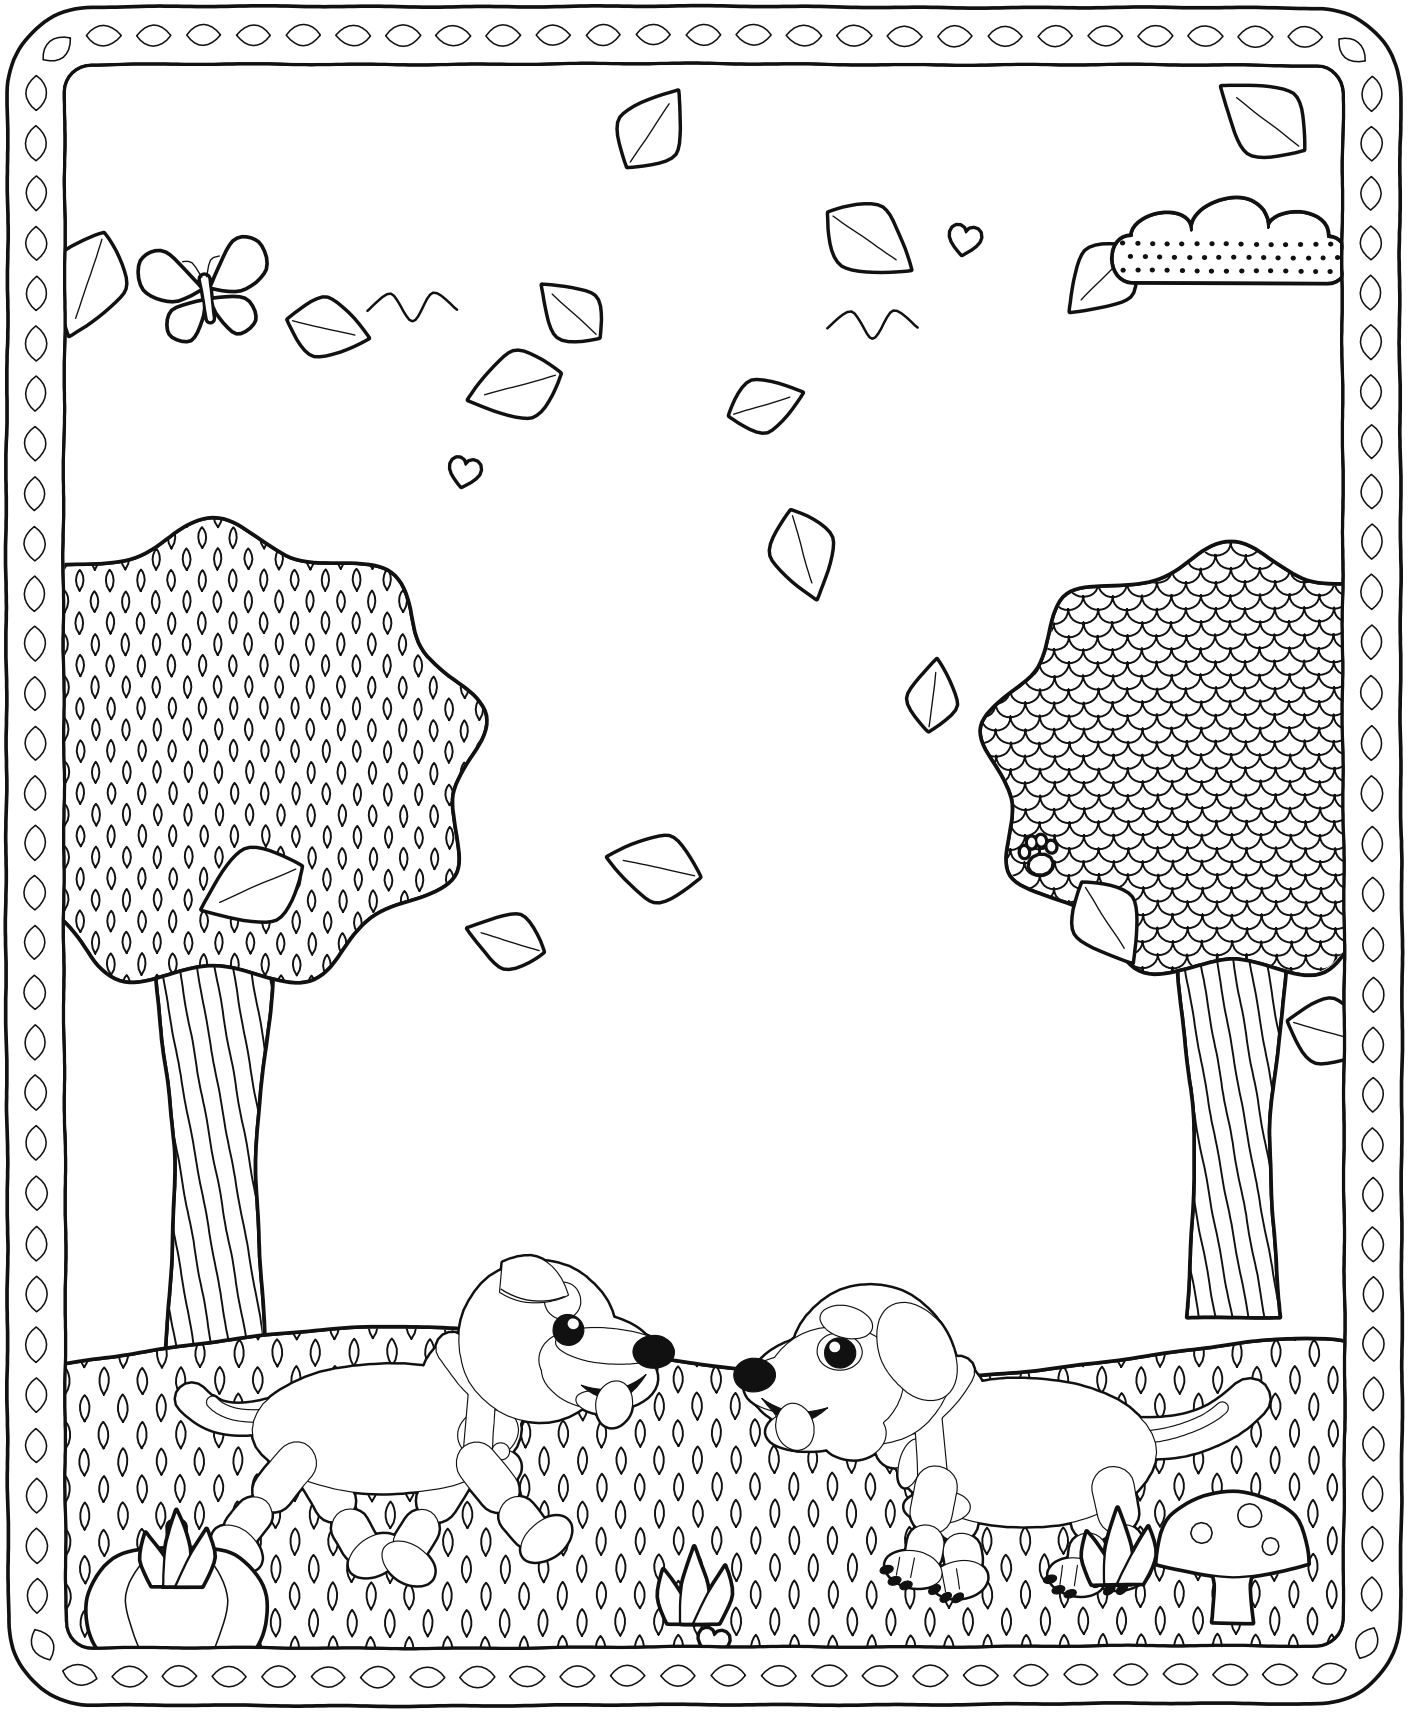

The town is sleeping. You can slow down too.

Notice three bright colors. Color those first.

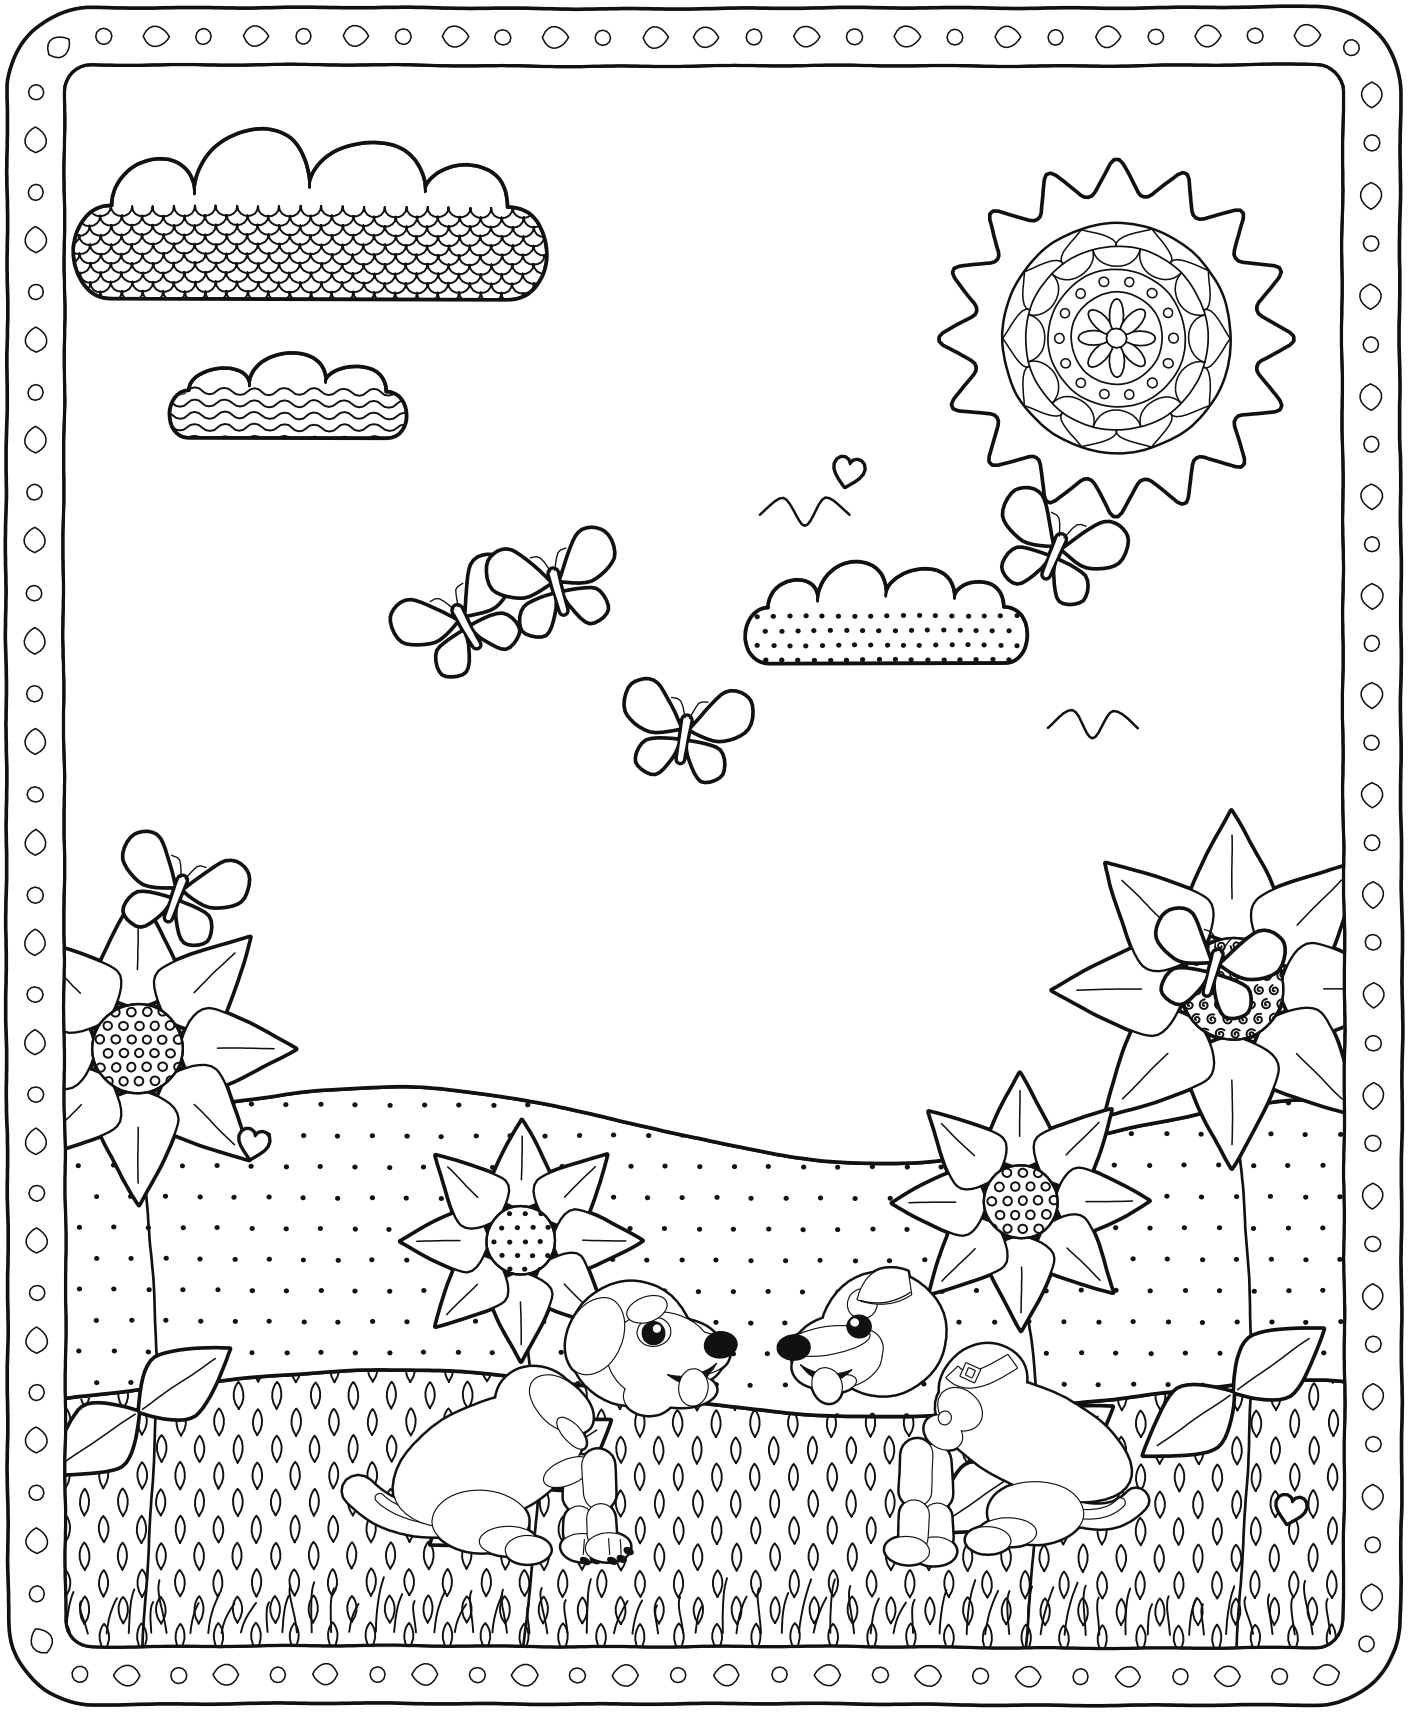

Warm hands, warm tea, slow breath.

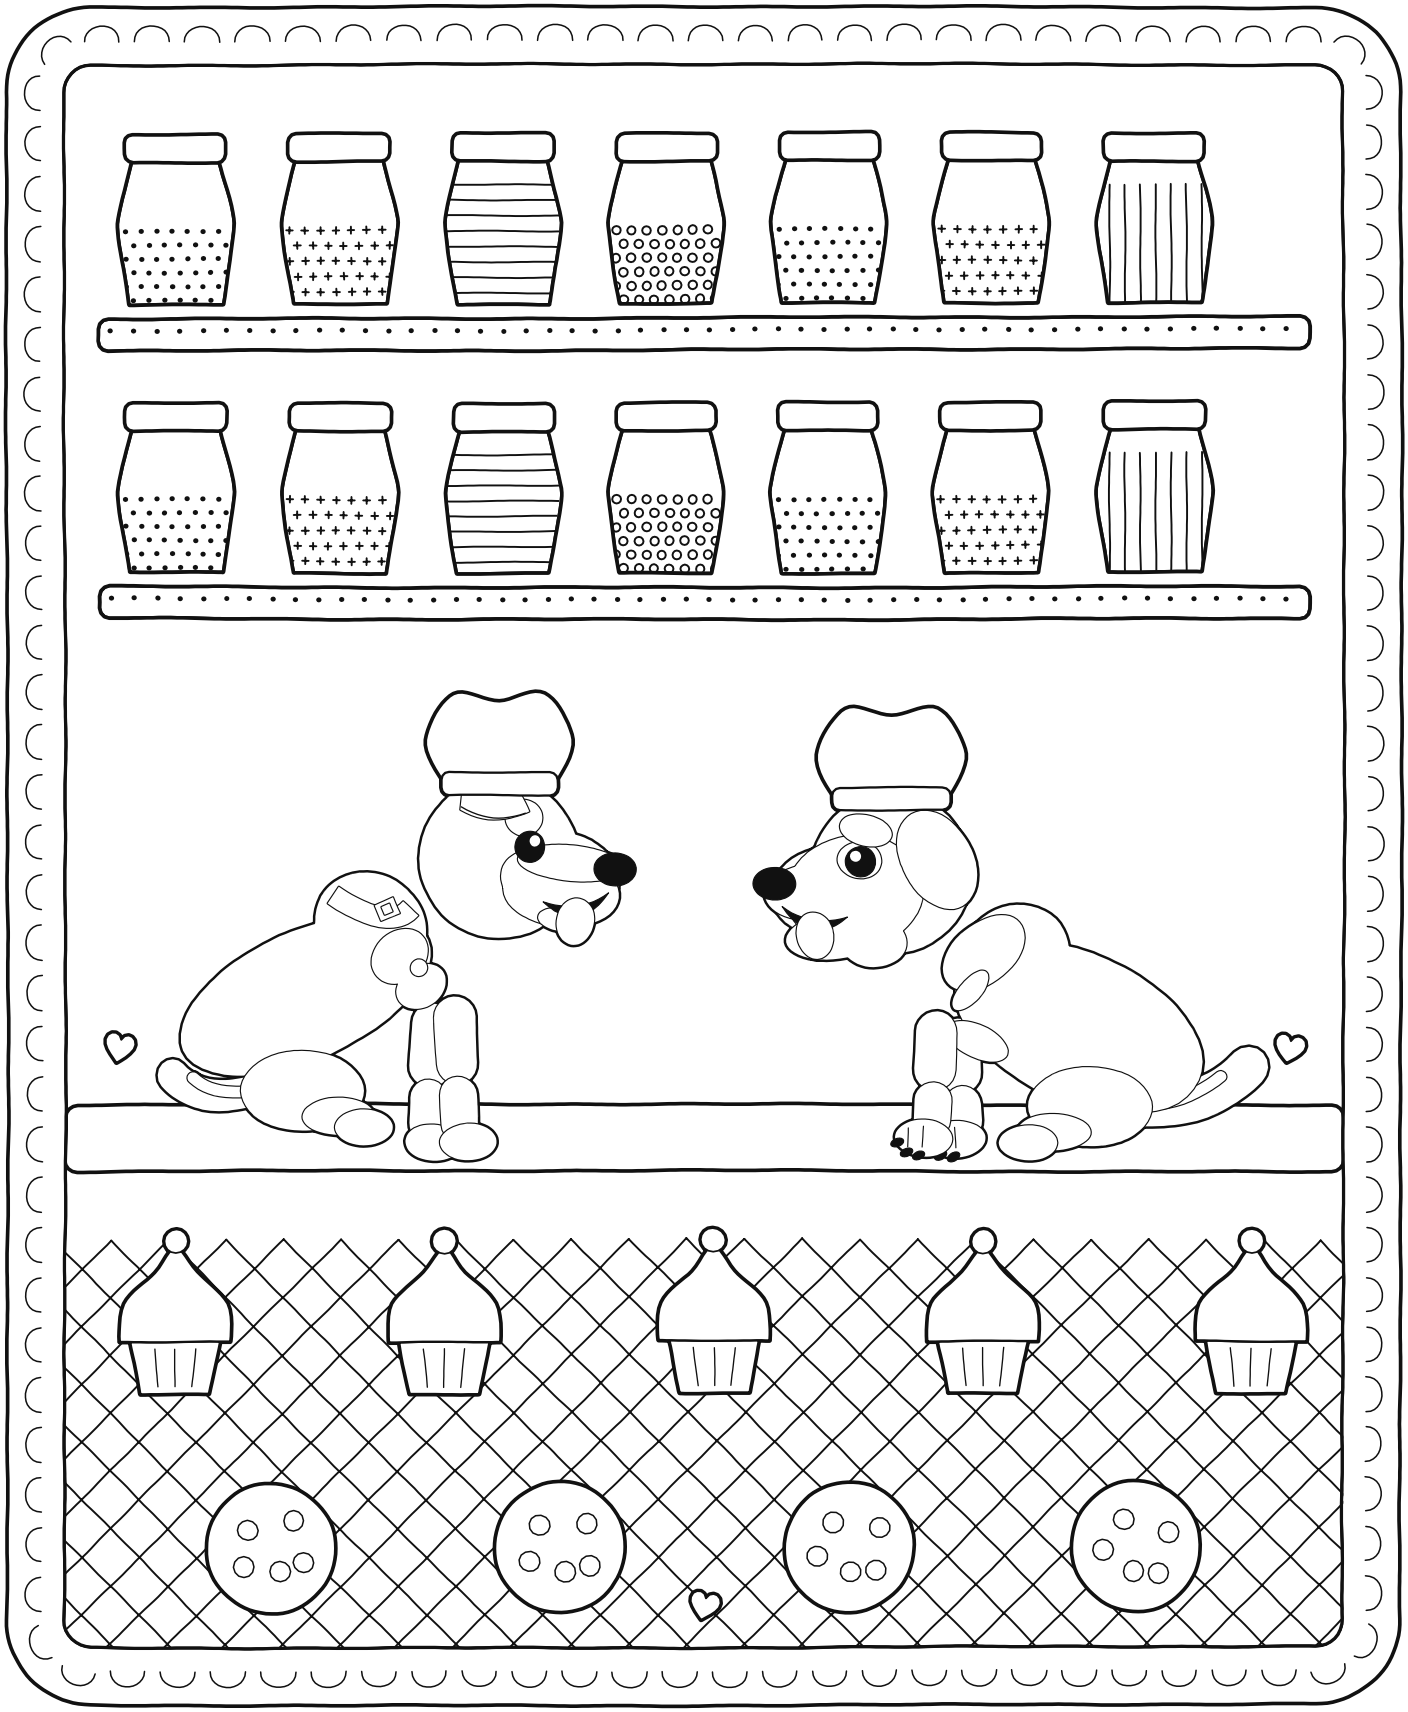

Let the leaves fall. You can let go too.

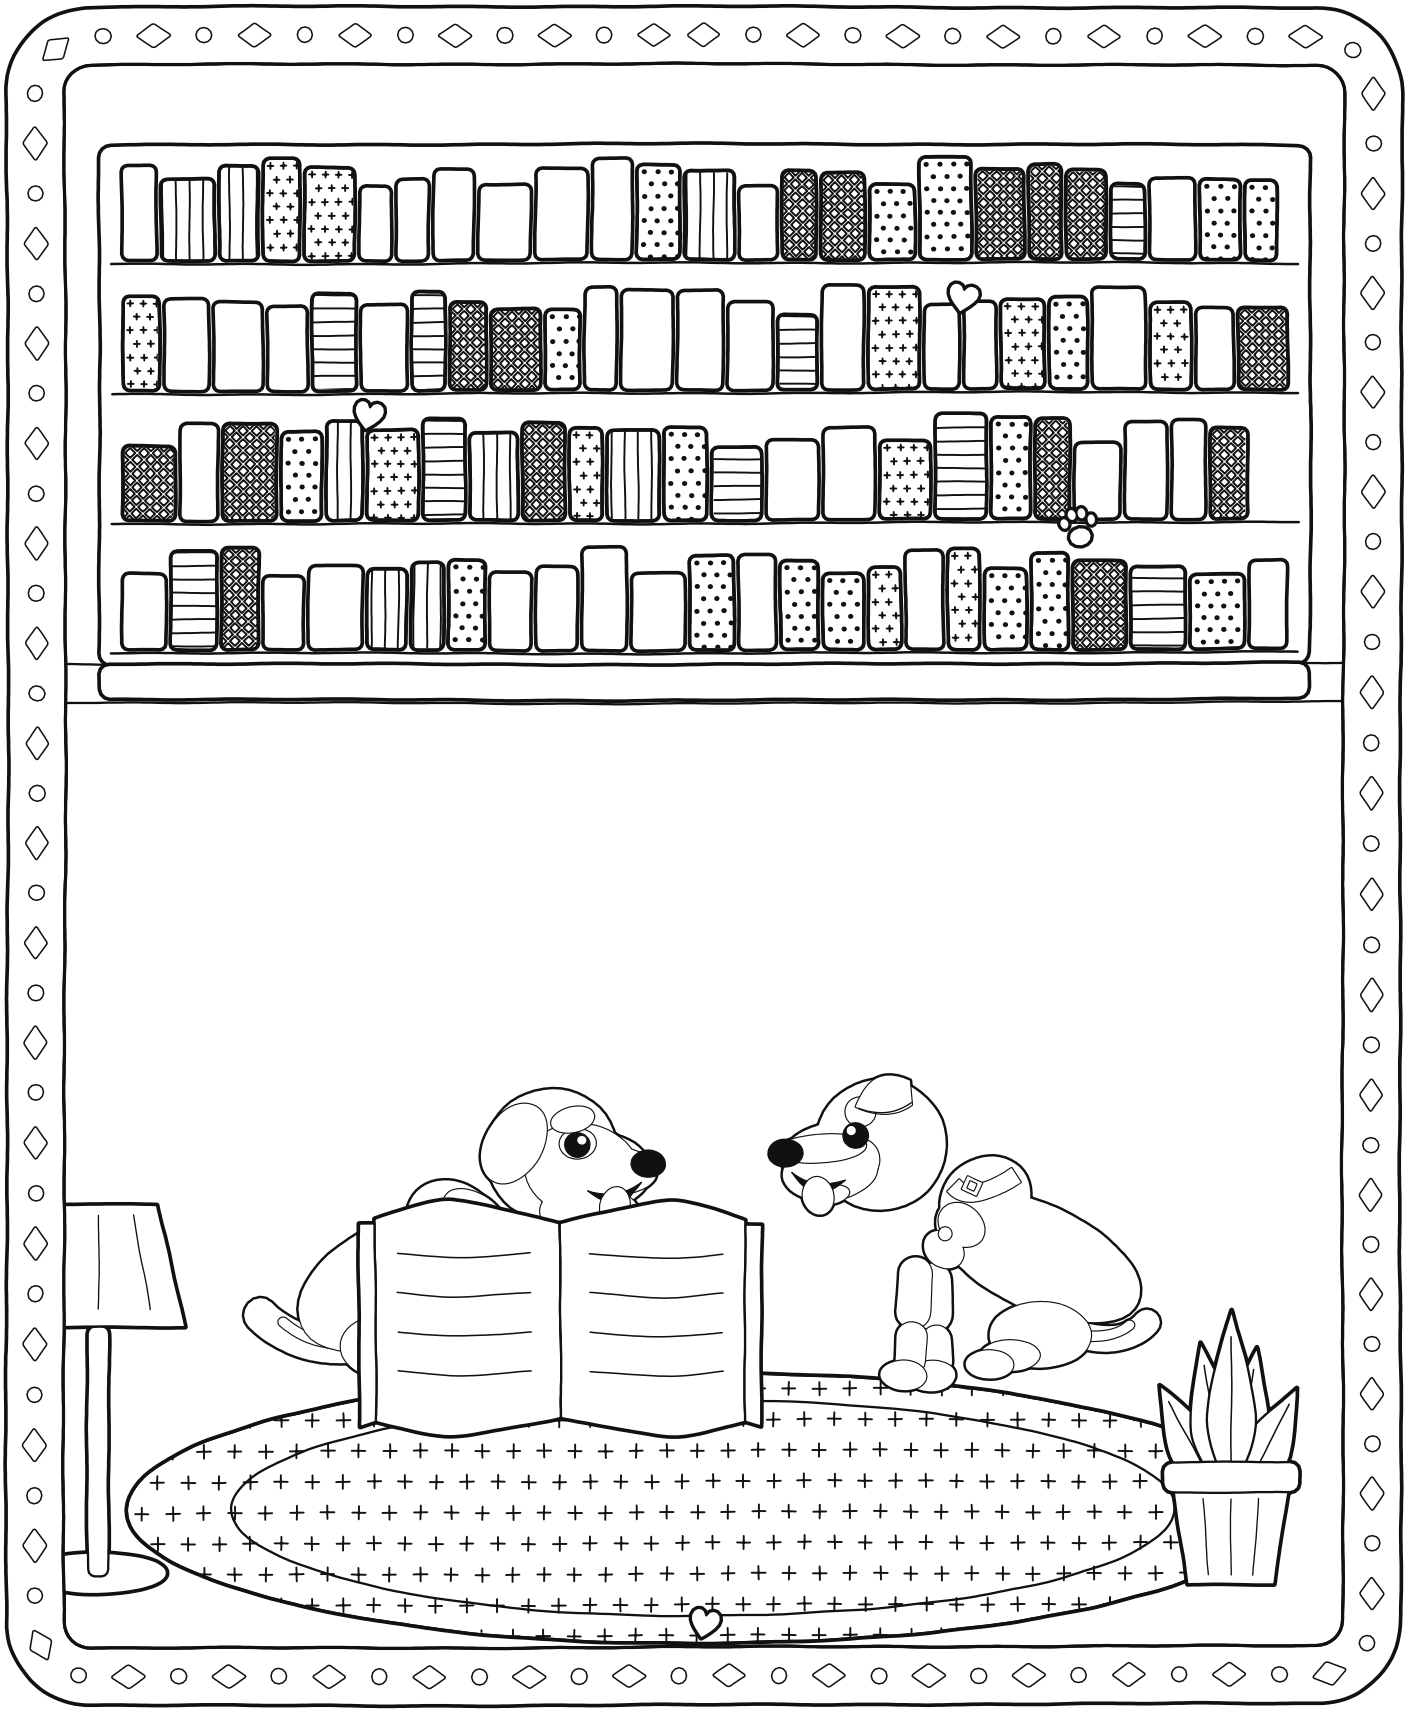

Cold nose, warm heart. Take a slow breath.

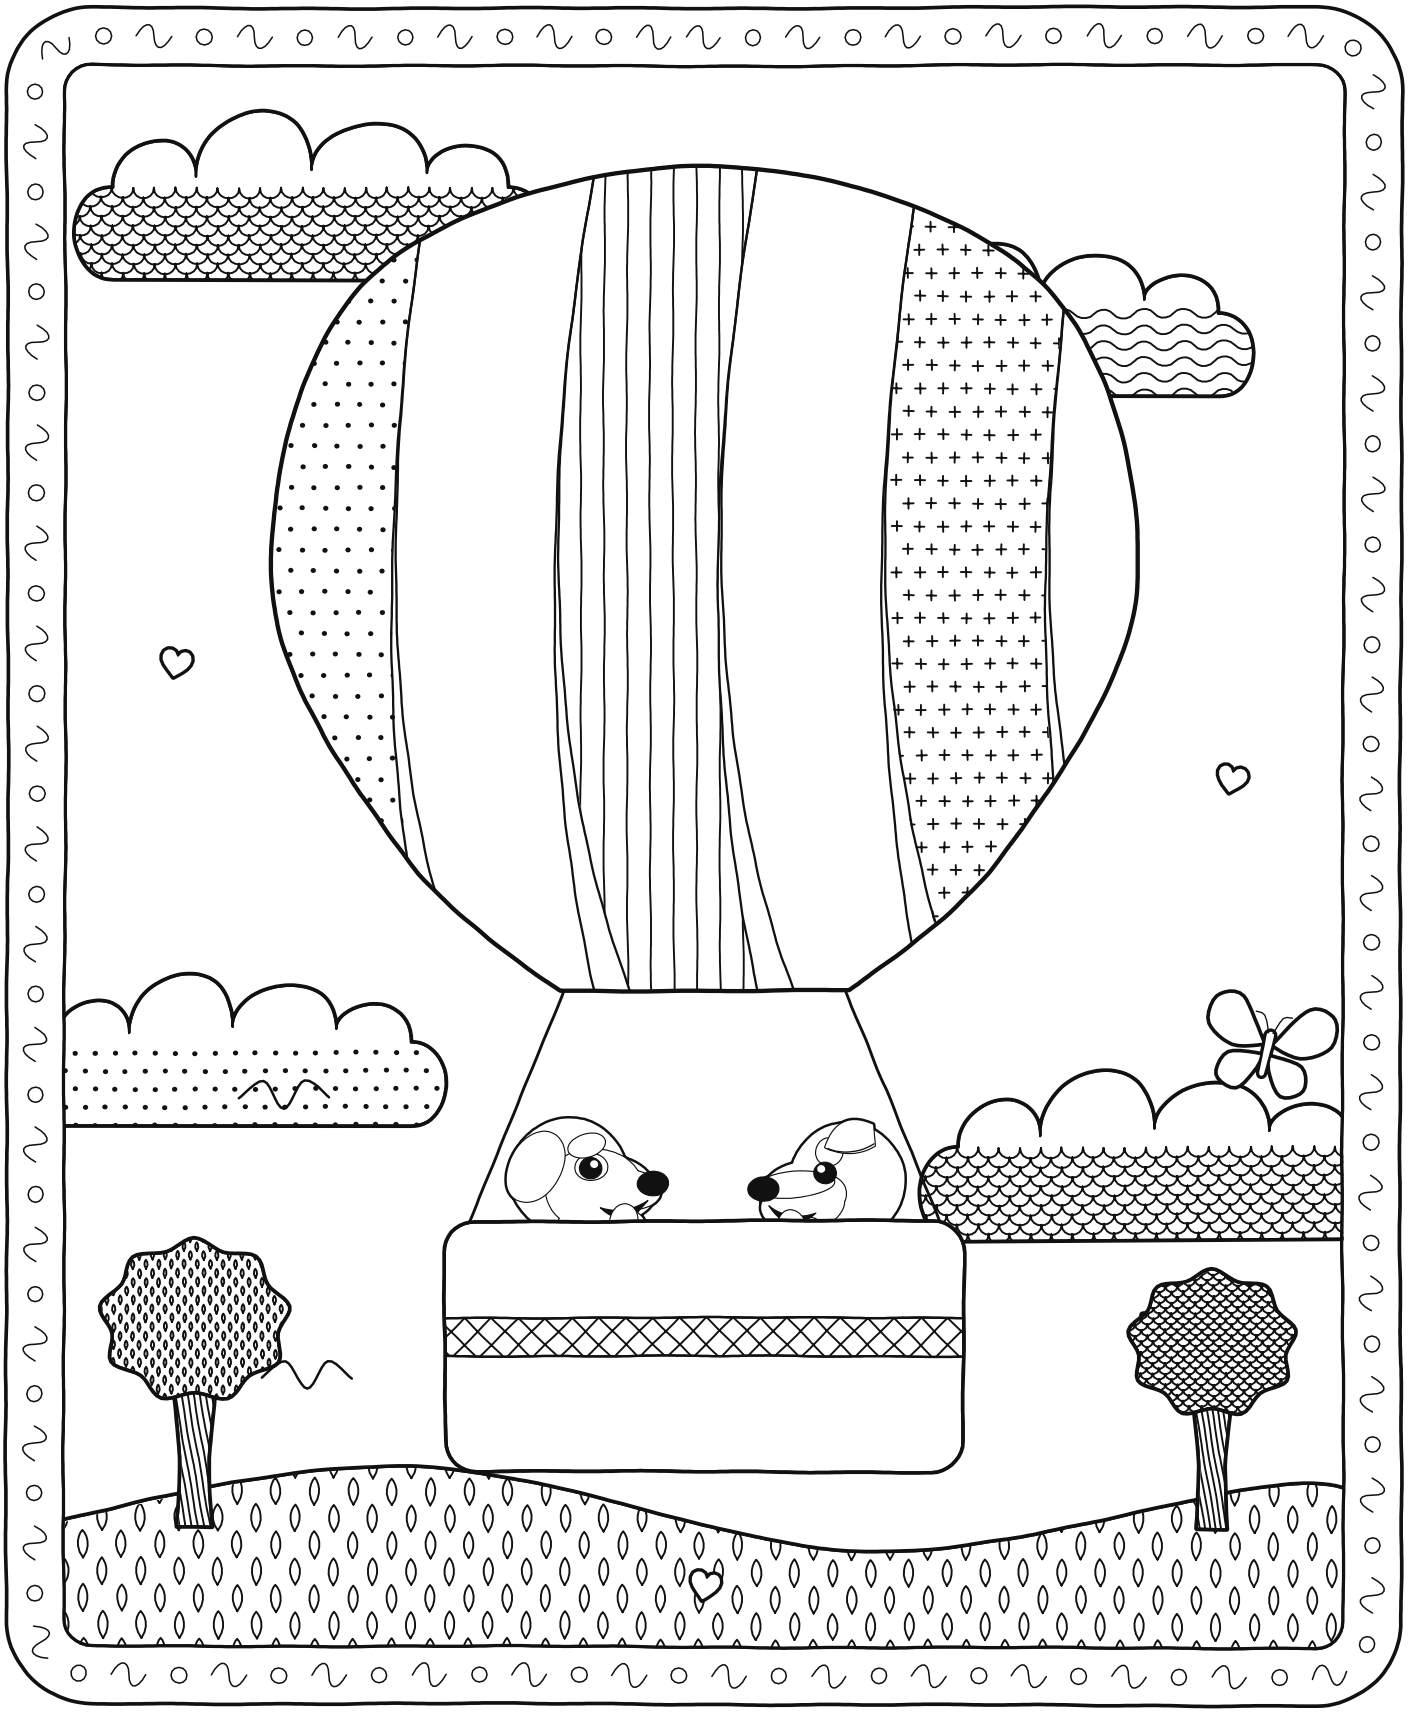

Smell the flower. Breathe in for four. Breathe out for four.

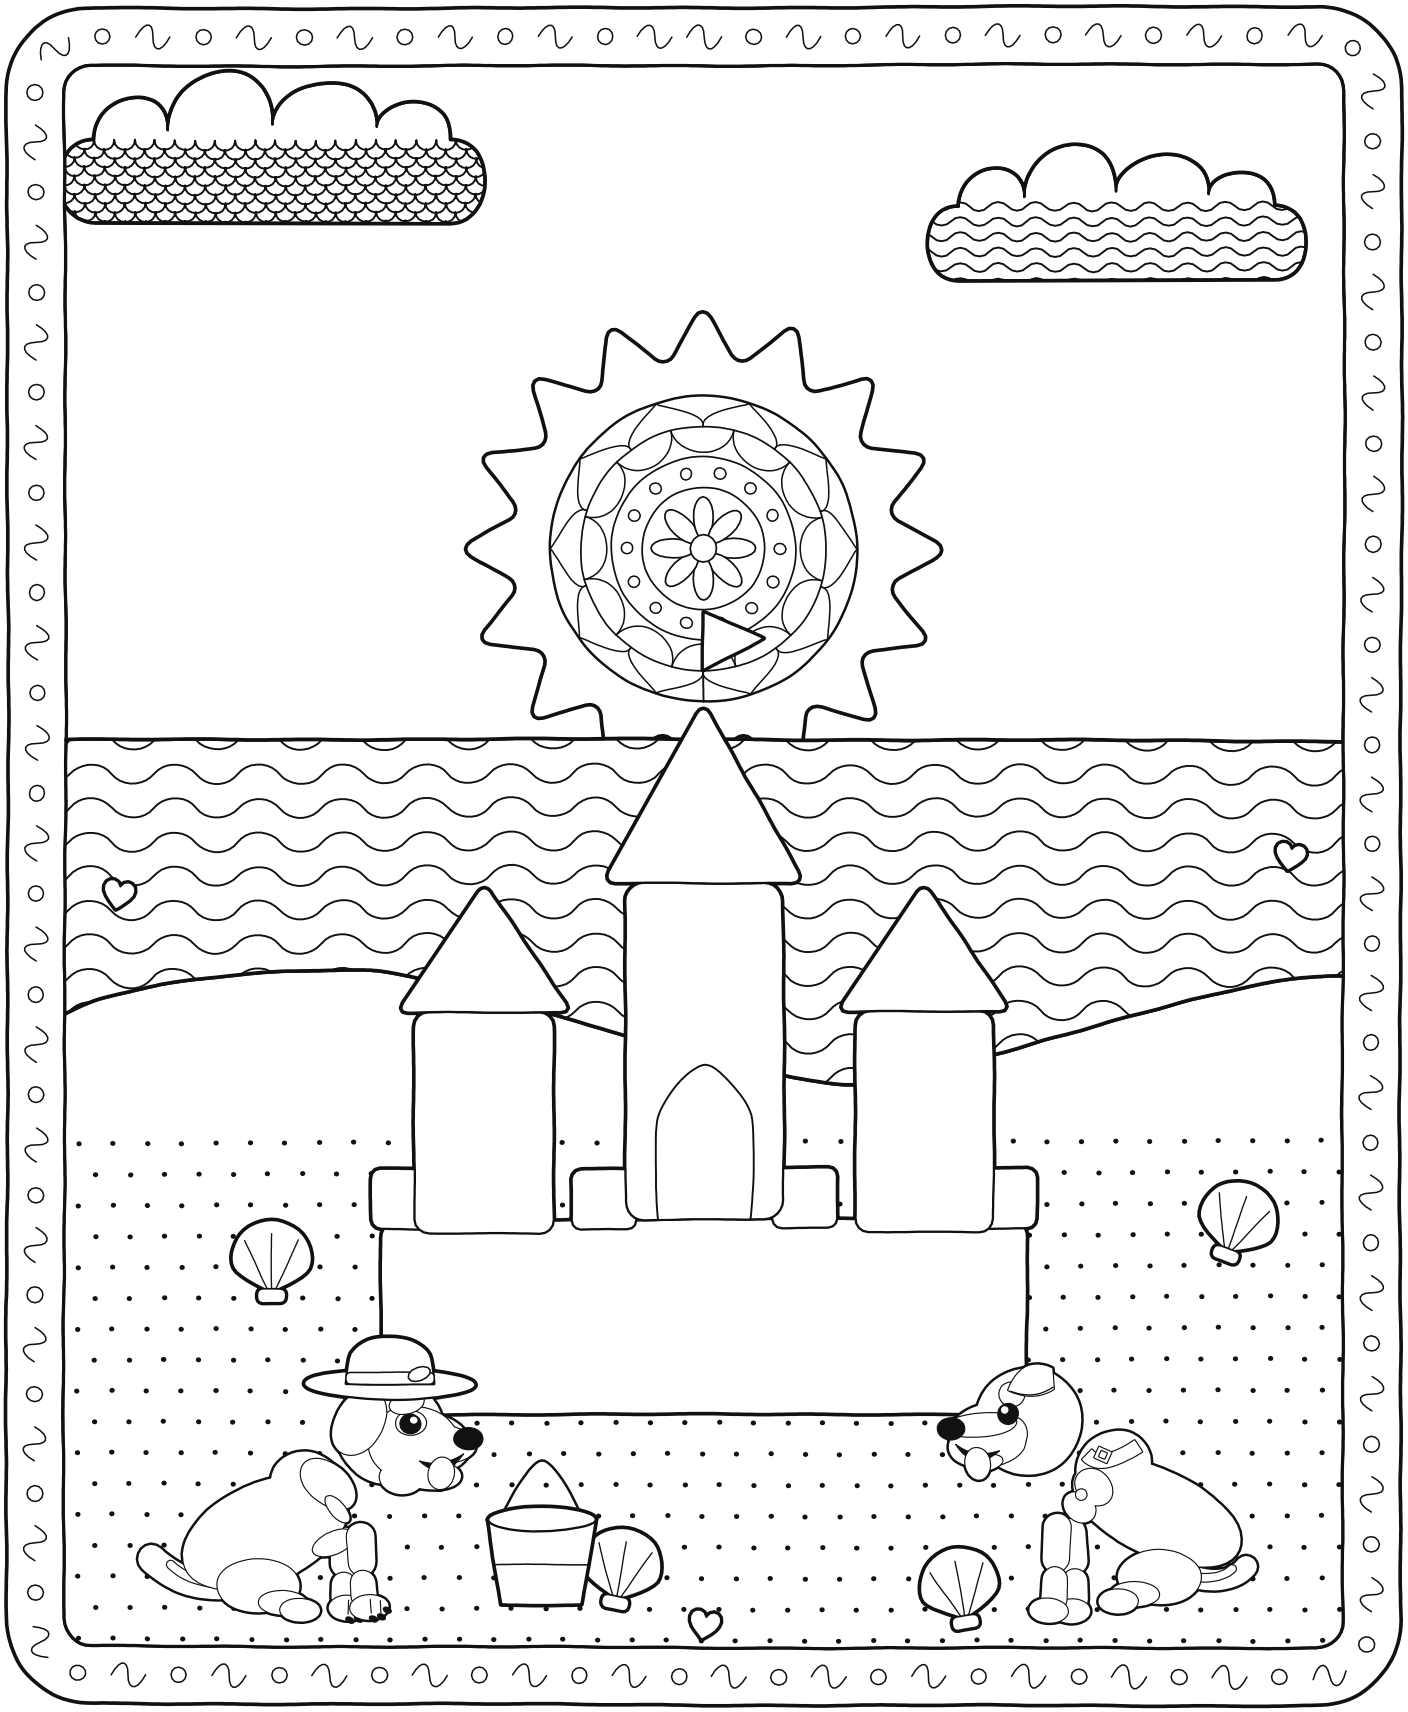

Mix slowly. Good things need time.

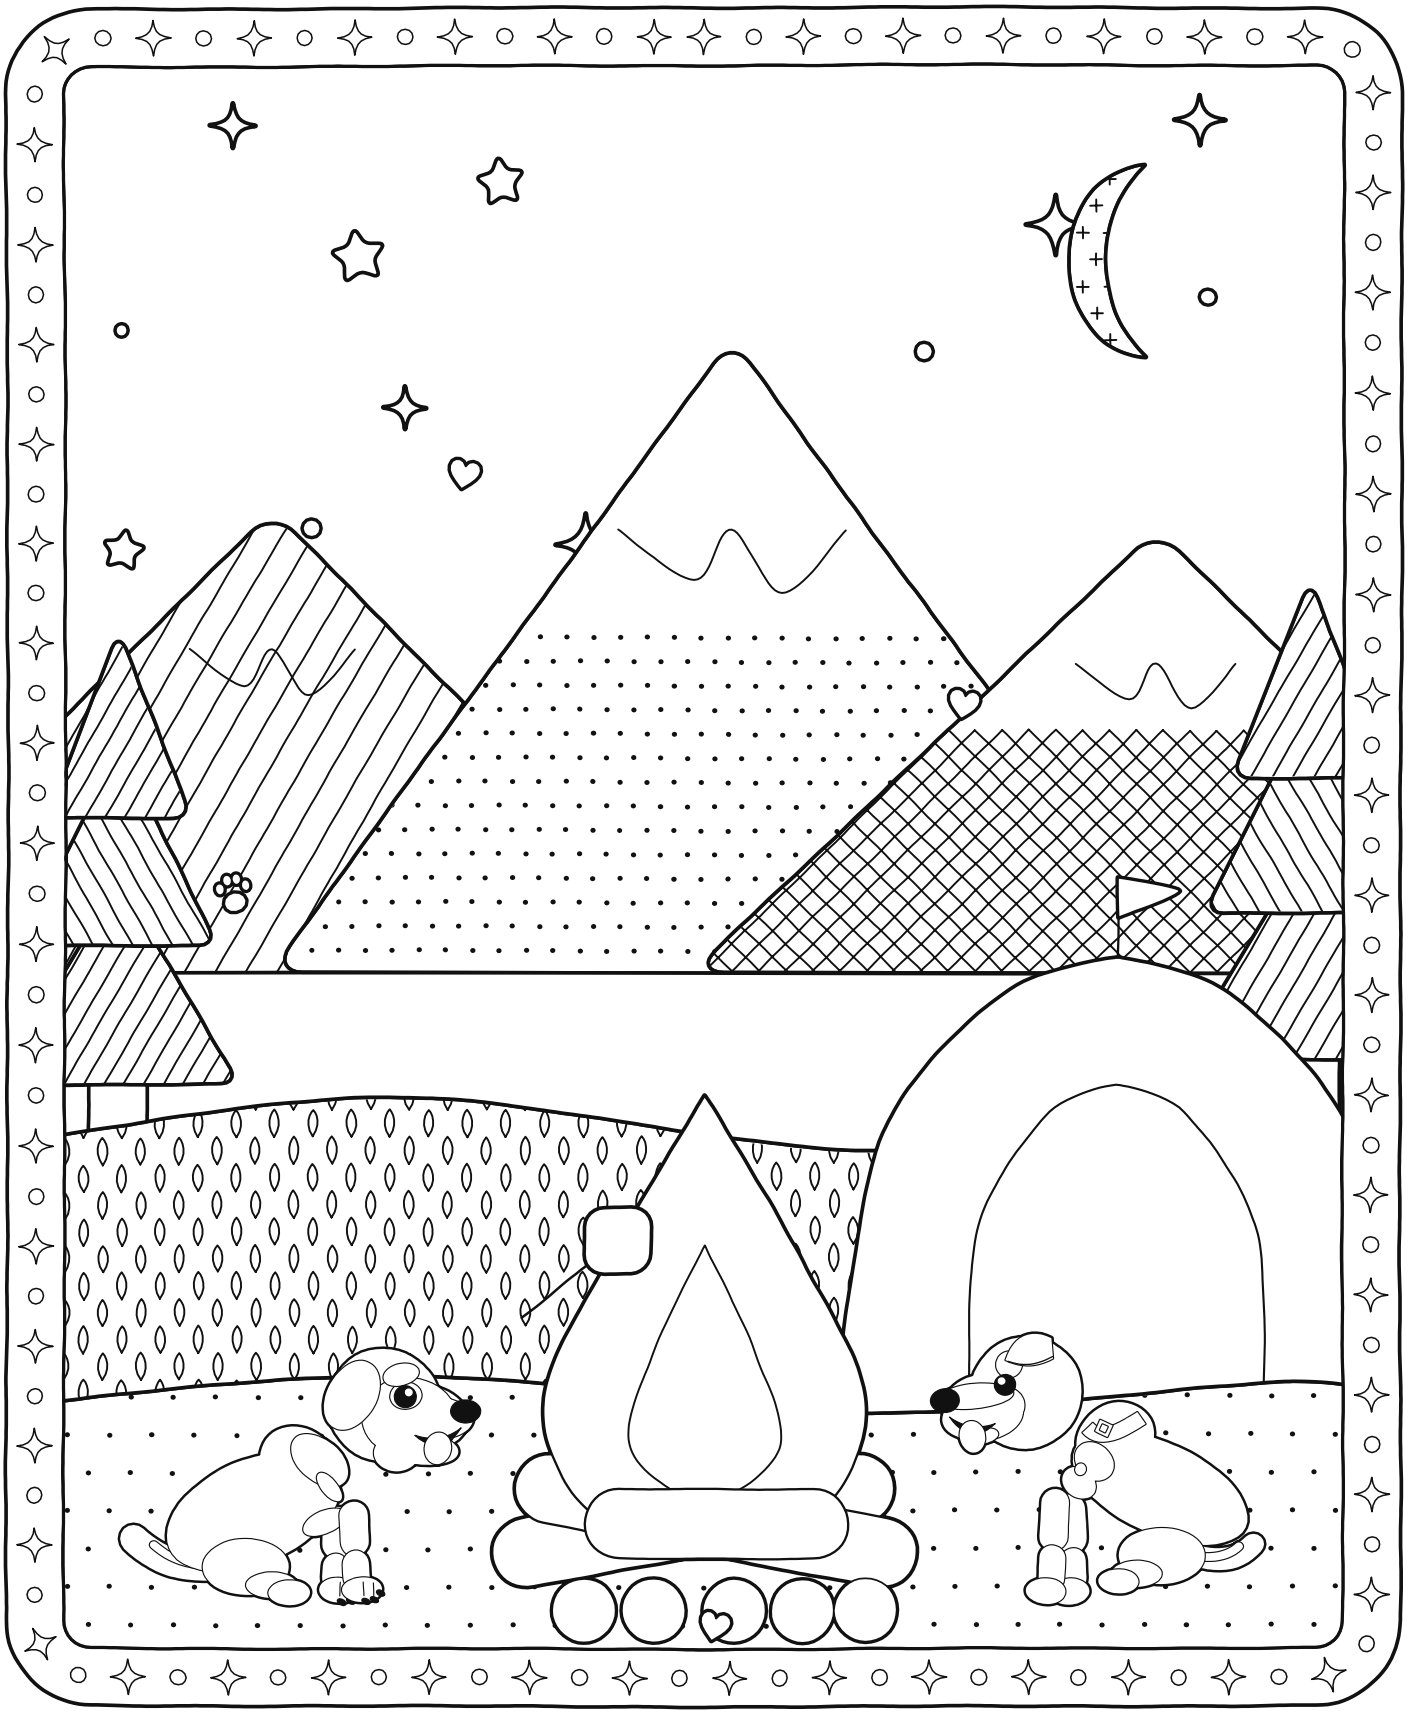

One page at a time is plenty.

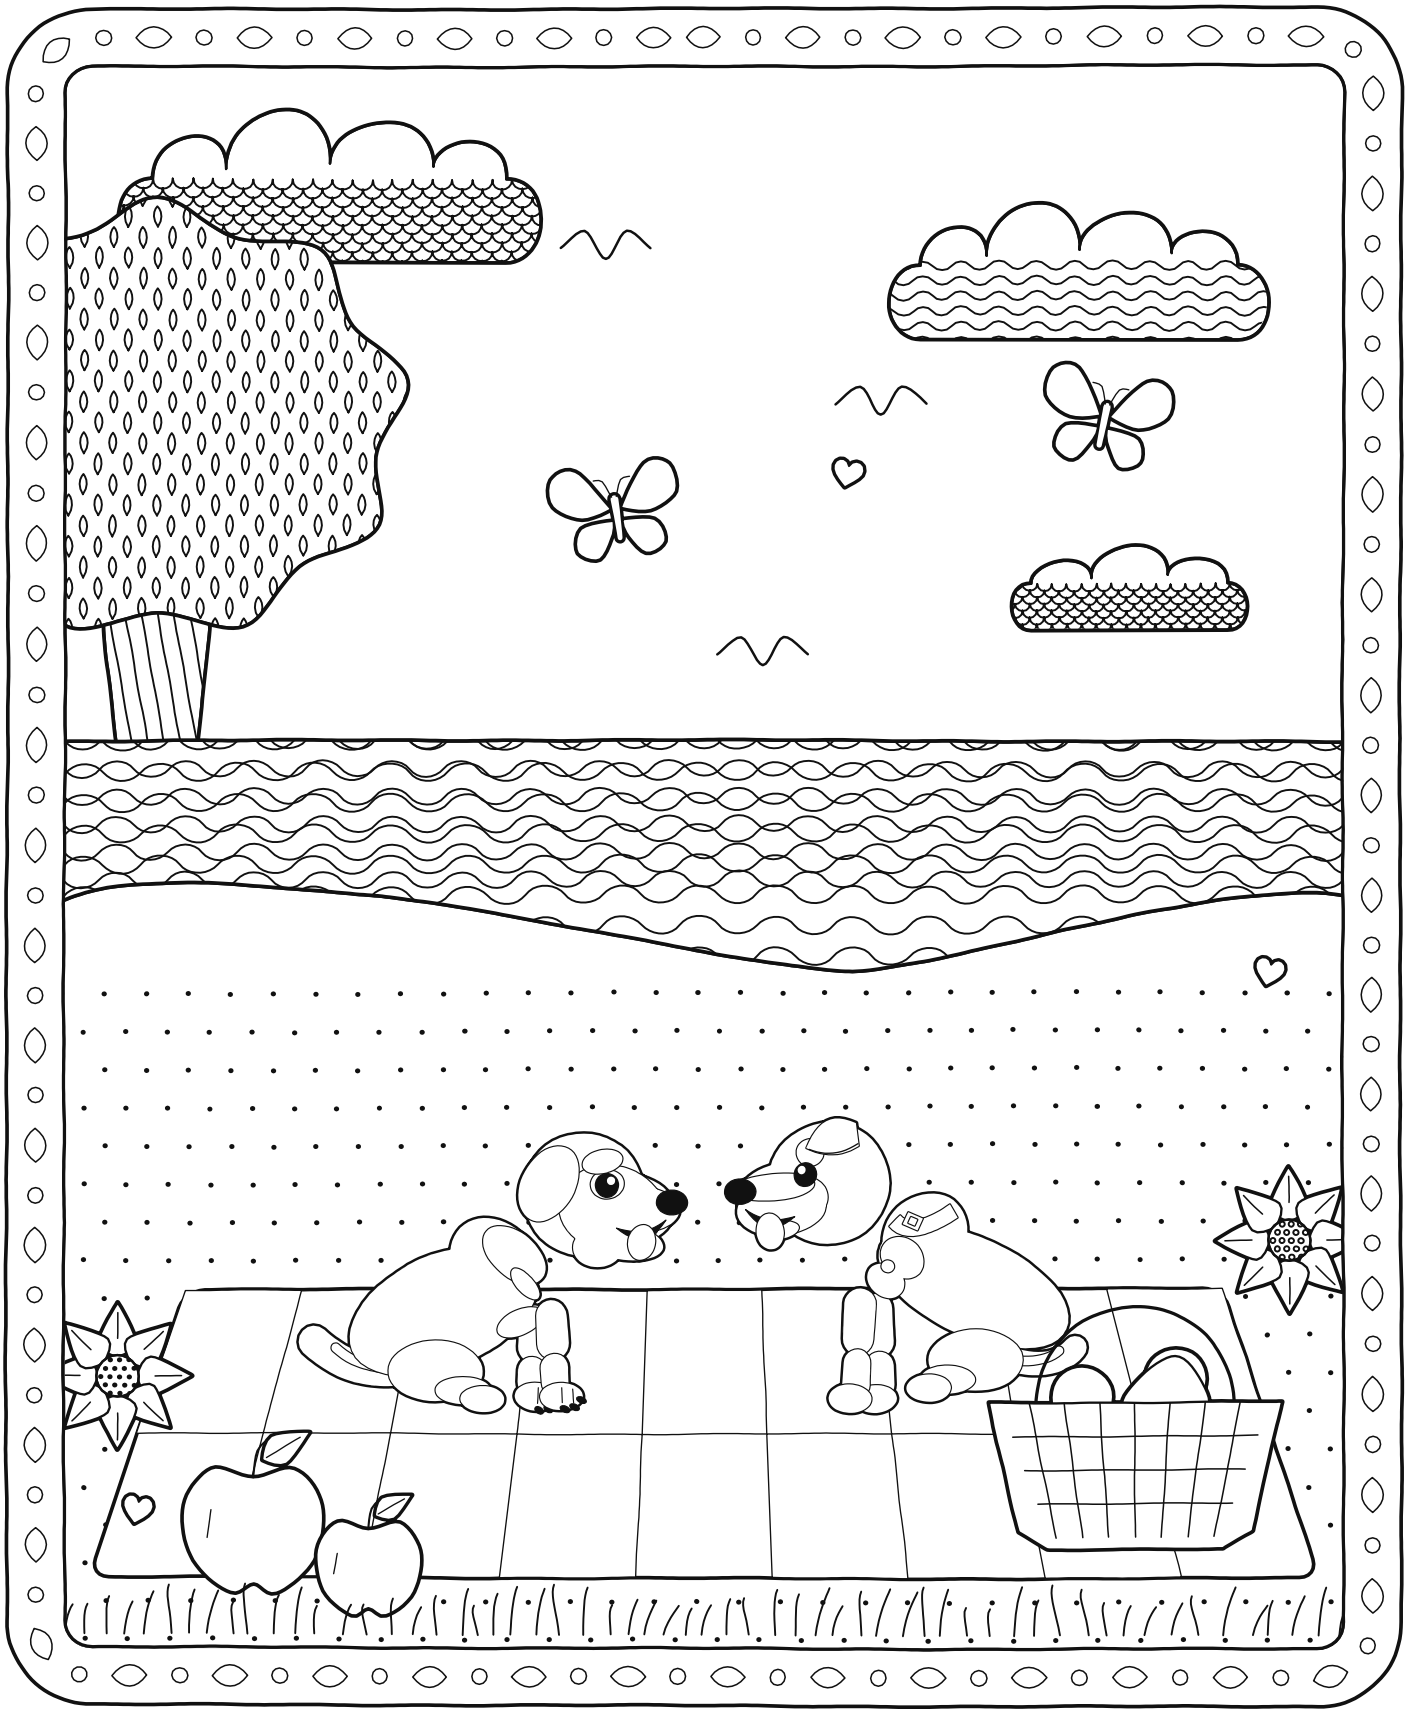

Rise slowly. Look at how far you can see.

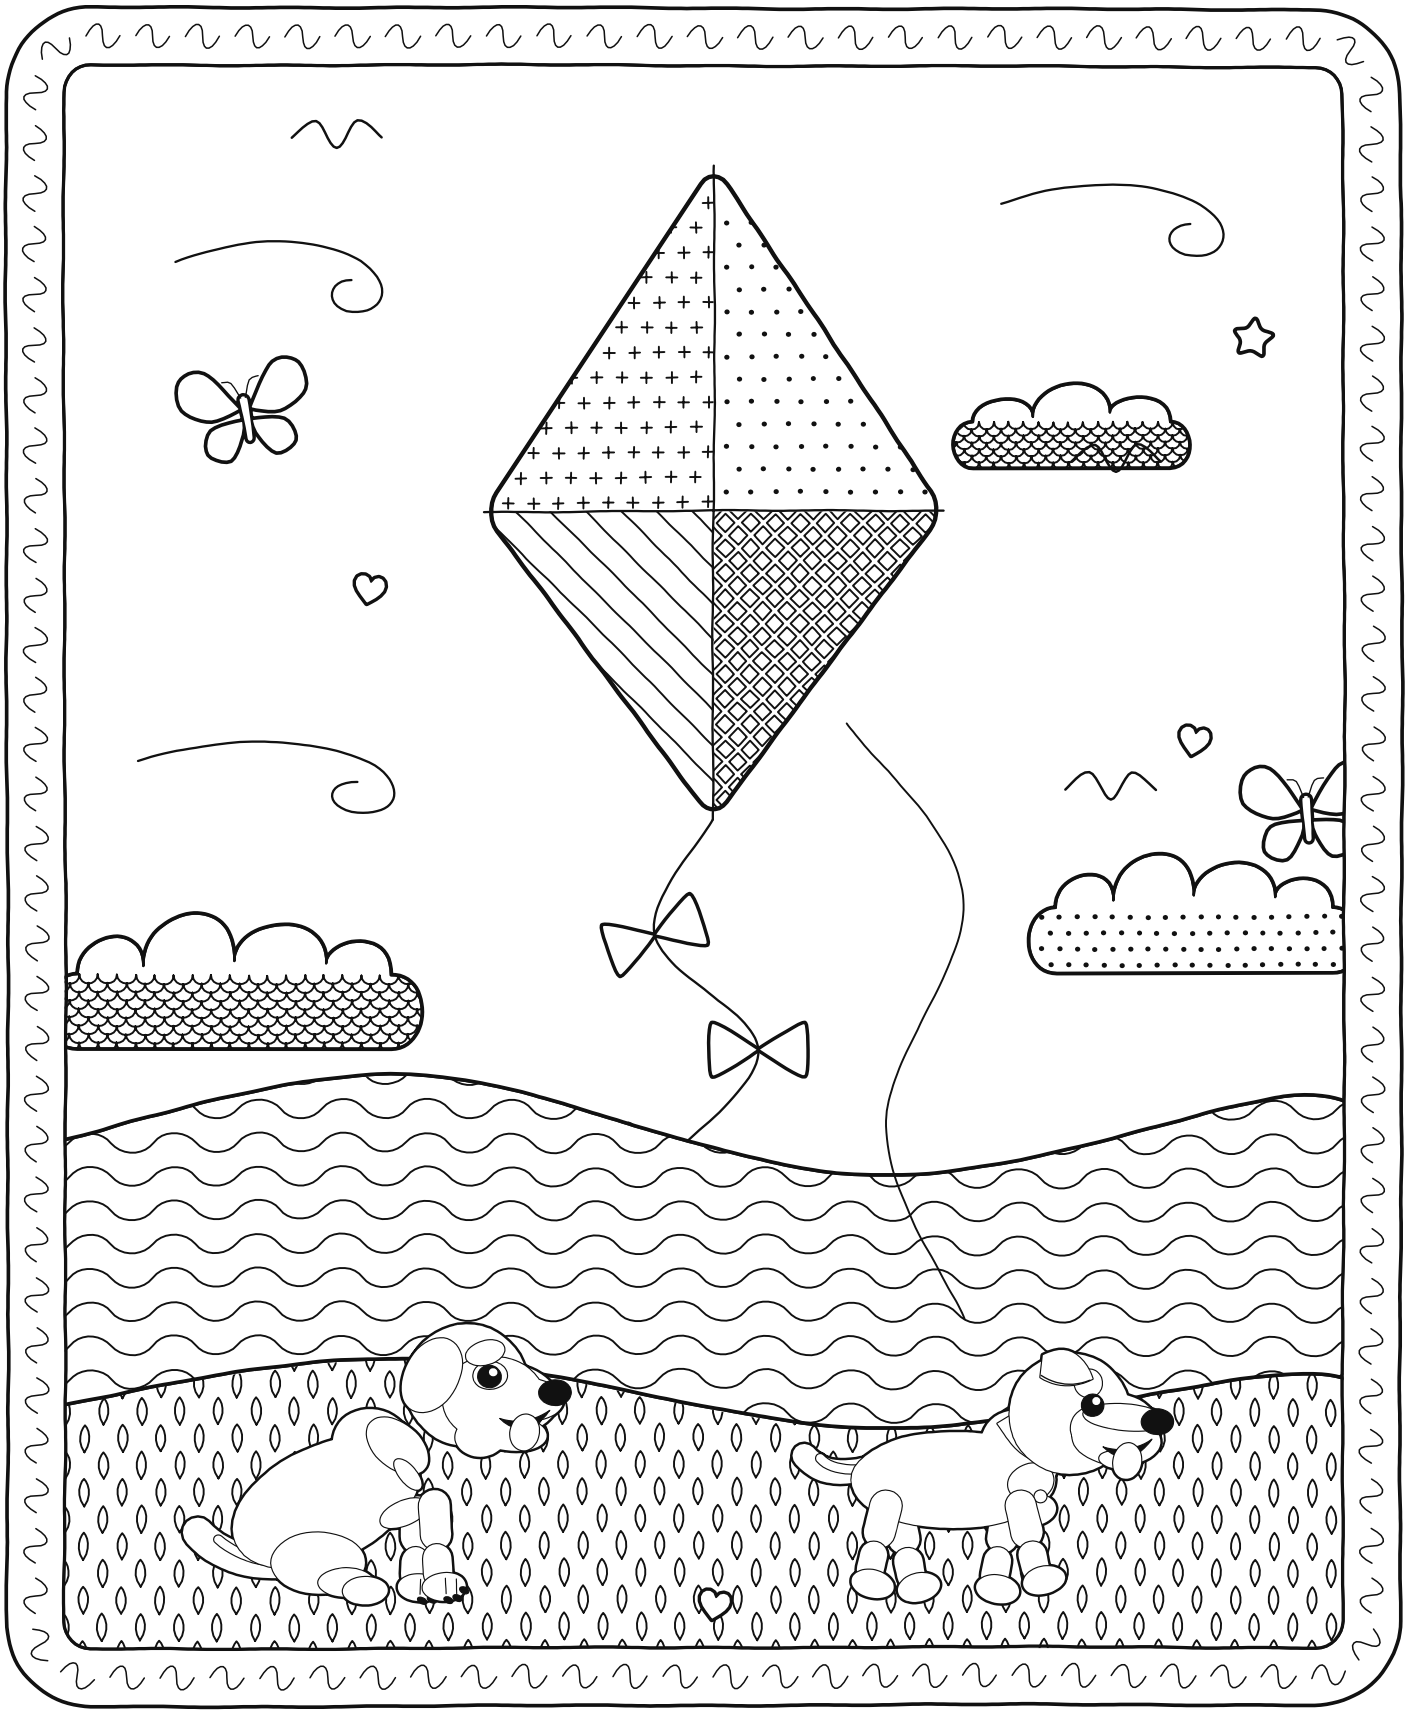

Breathe in with the wave. Breathe out as it leaves.

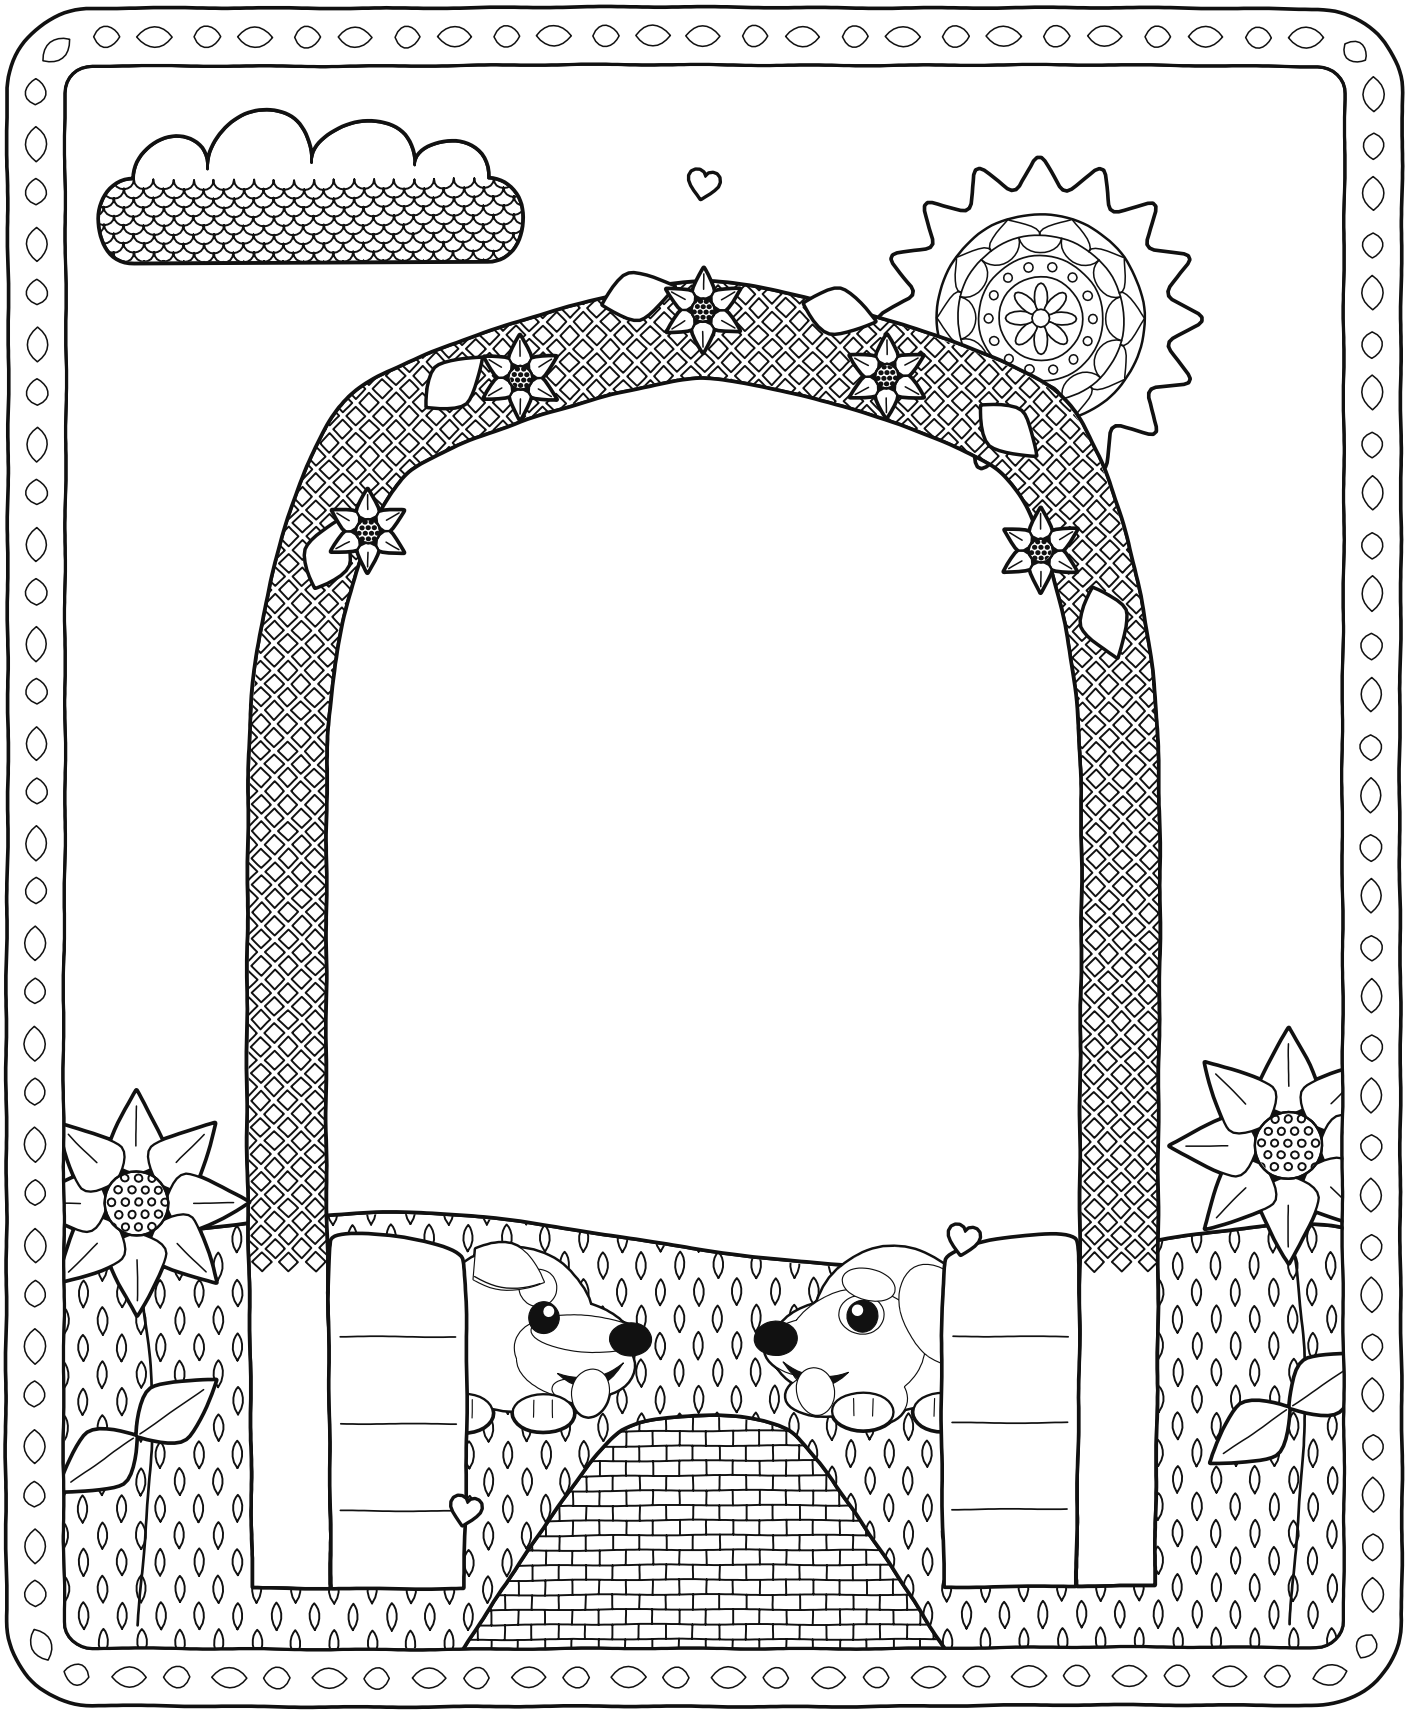

Watch the fire. Feel your feet on the ground.

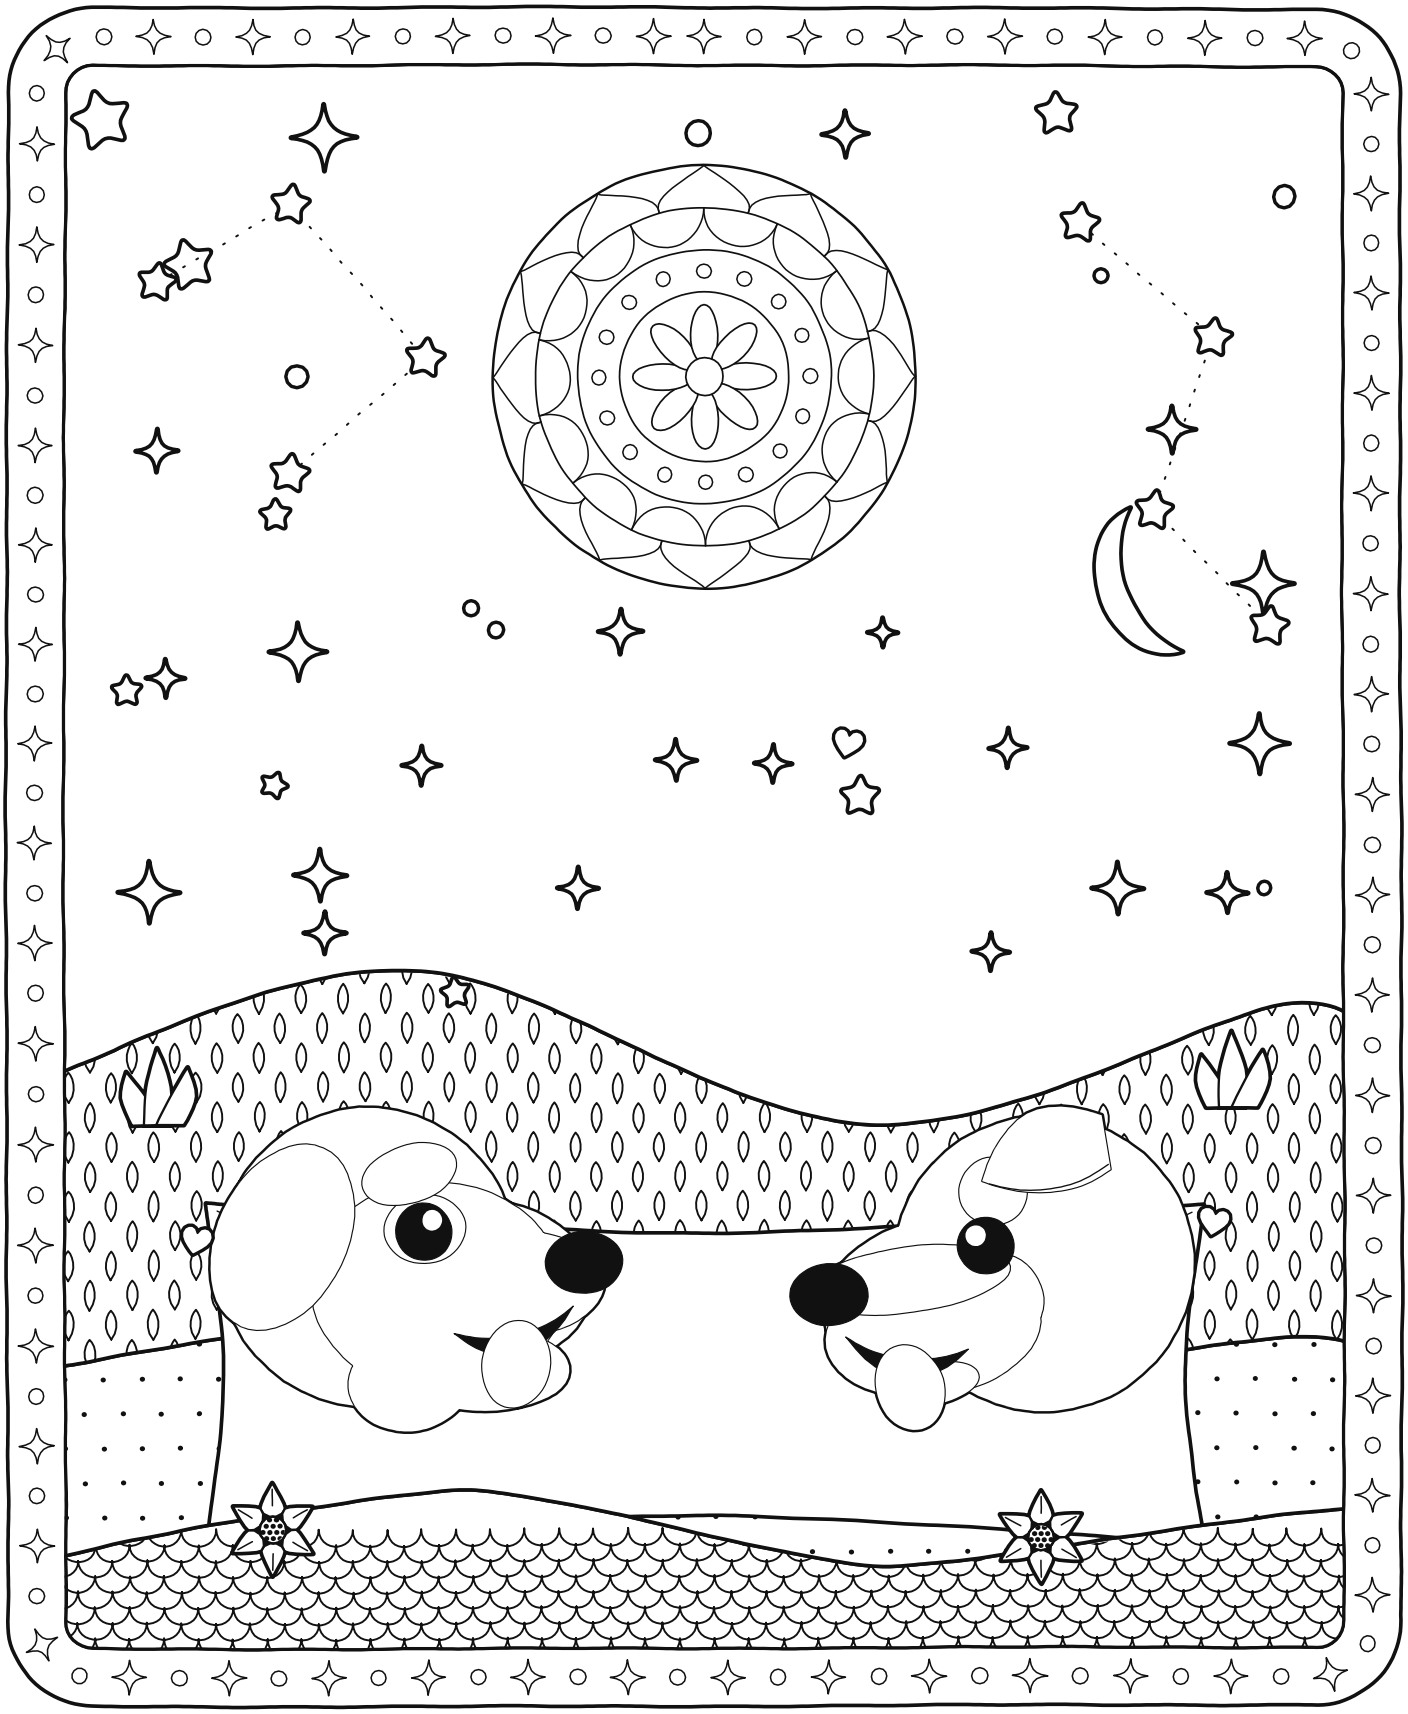

Share something small. Notice how it feels.

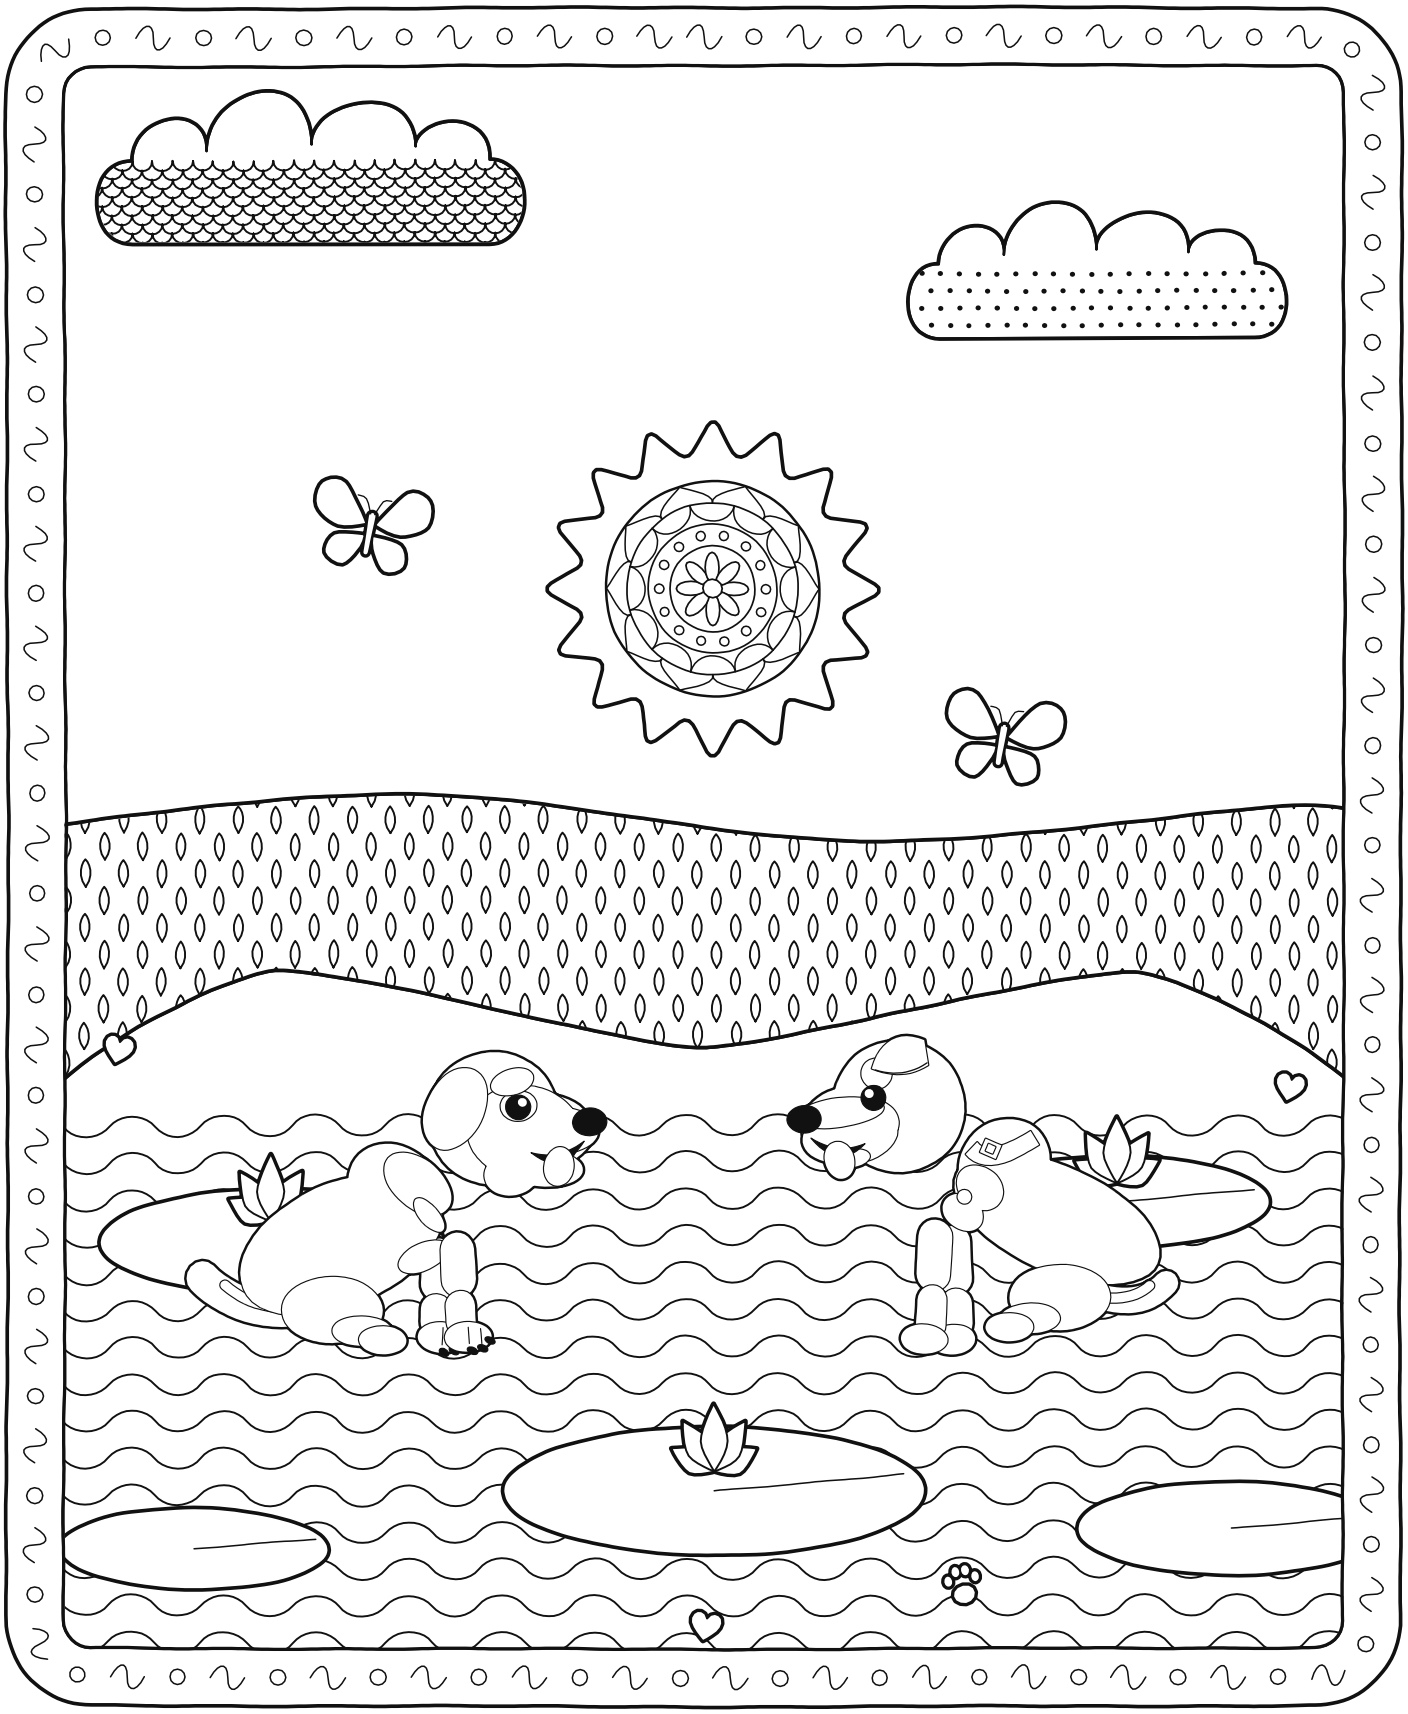

Hold on gently. The wind will do its work.

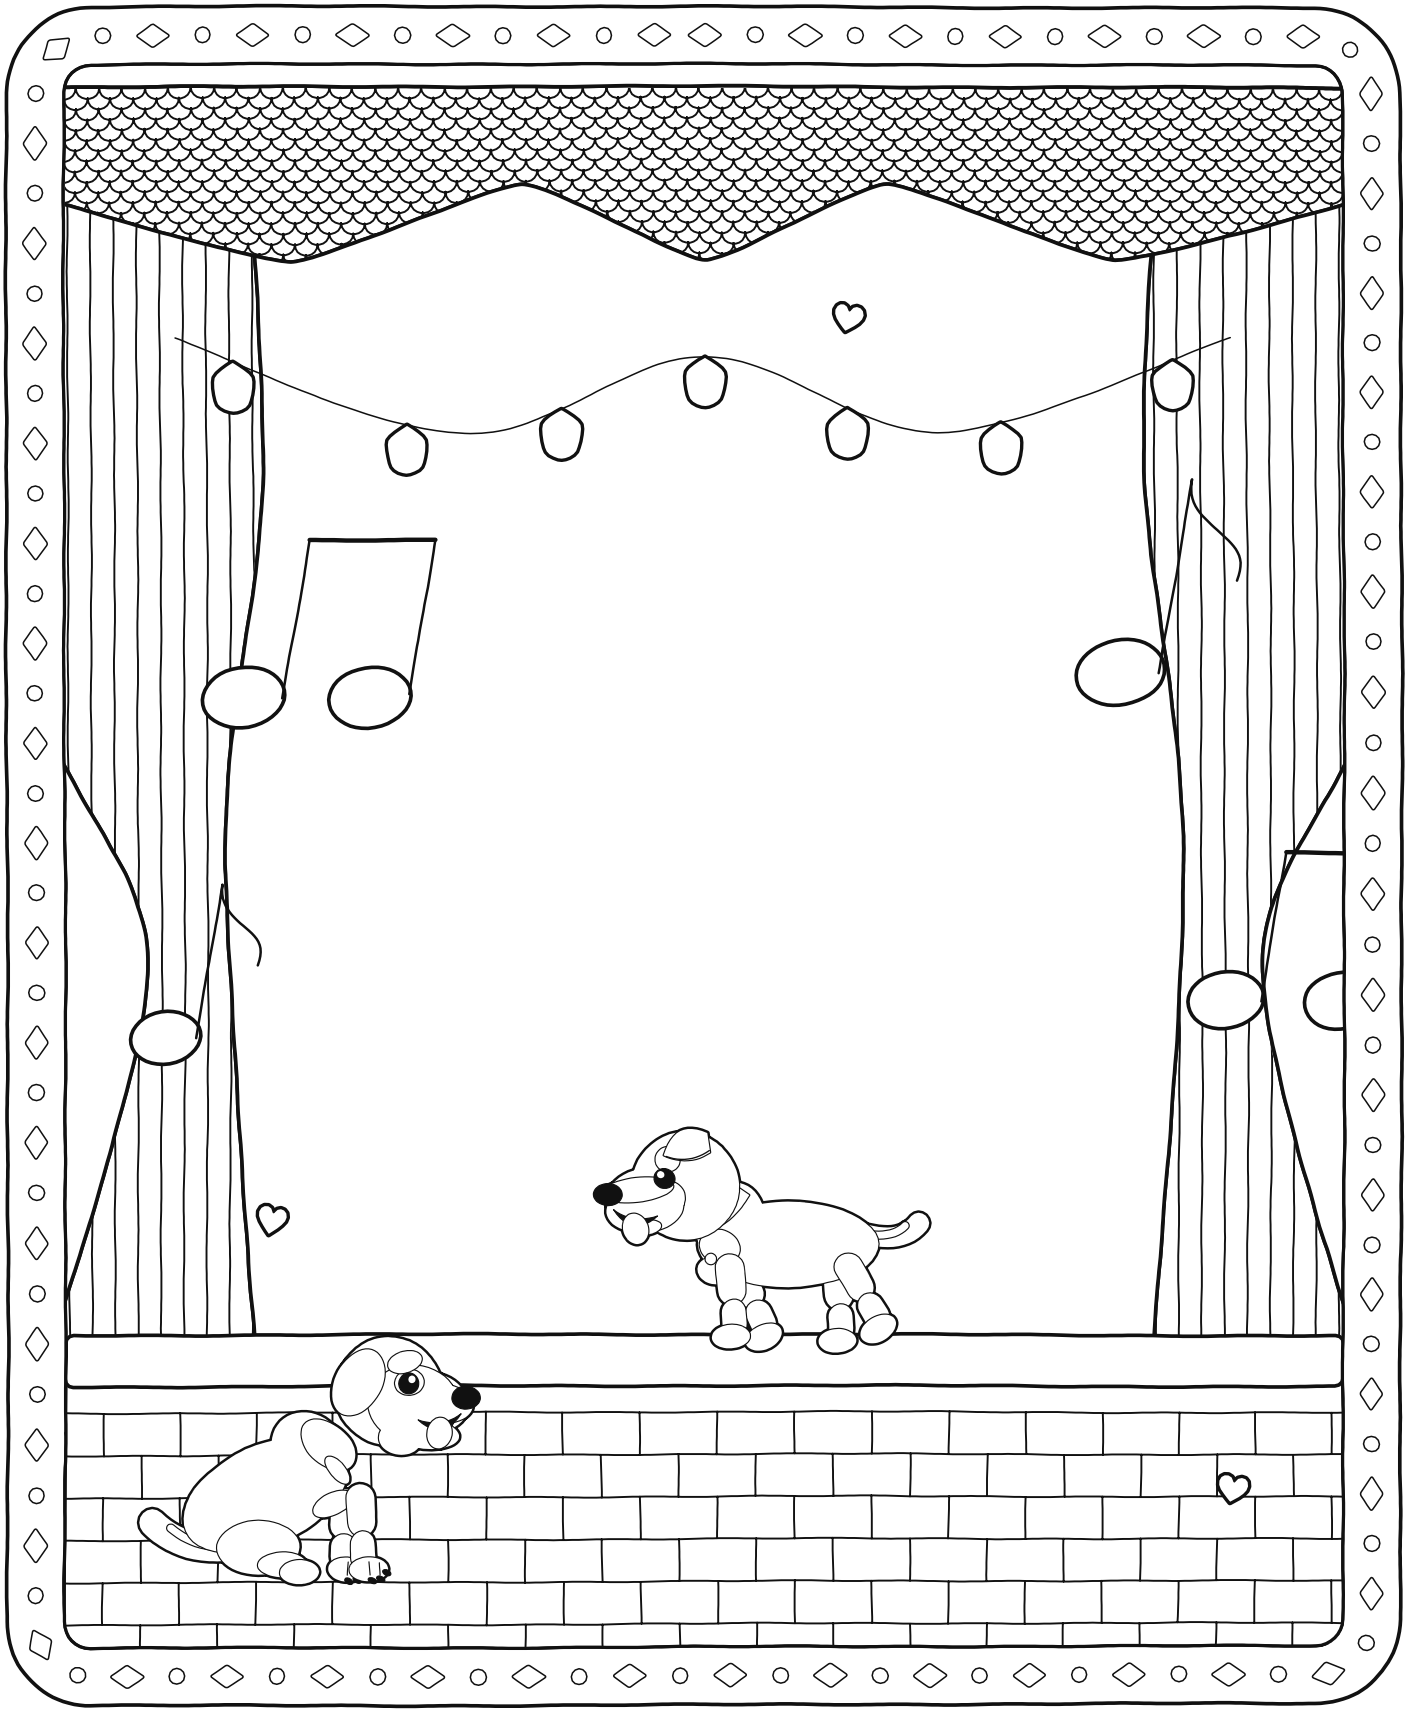

Open the gate. Take a step when you are ready.

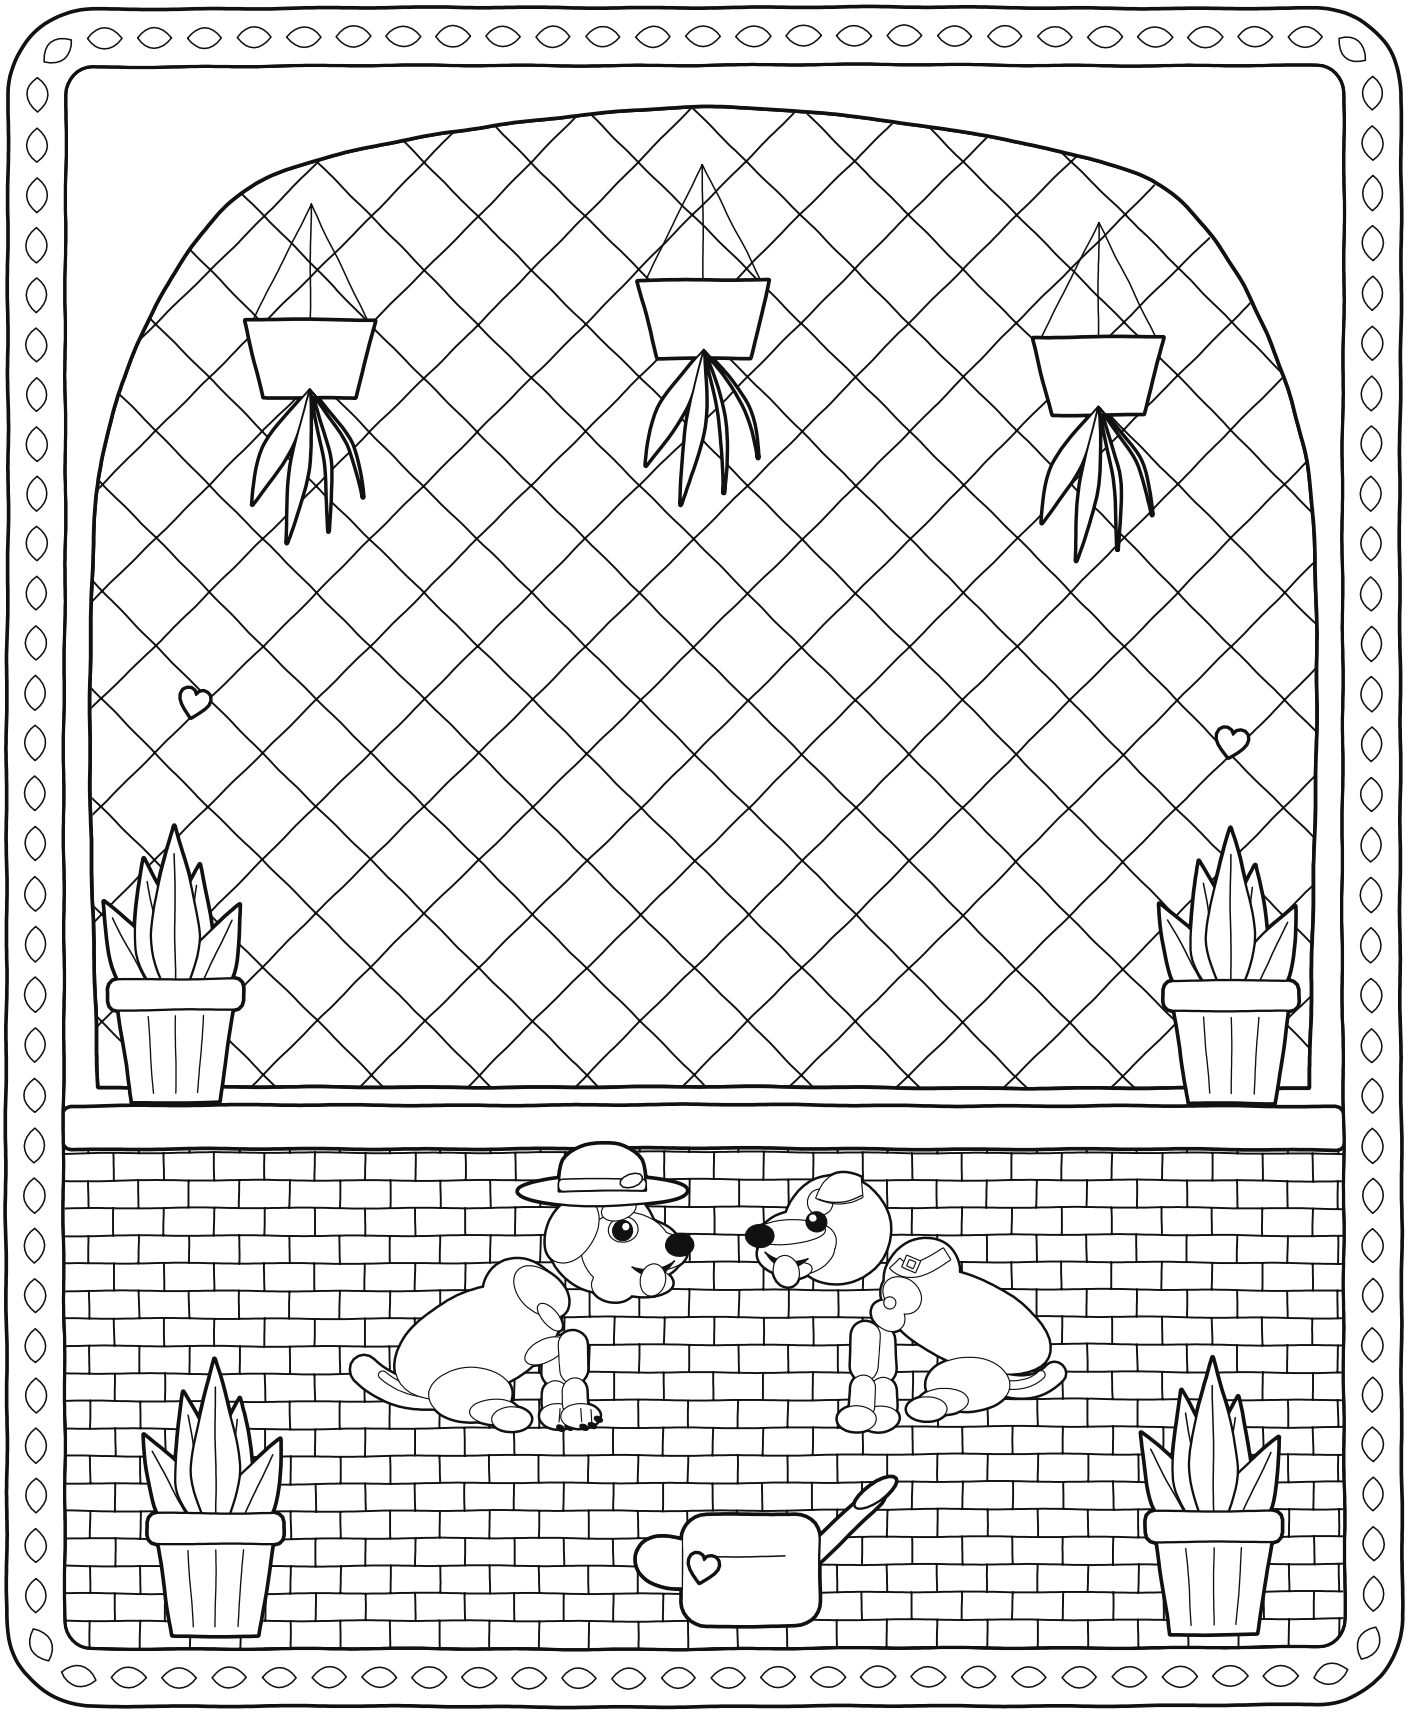

Count three stars. Then count three breaths.

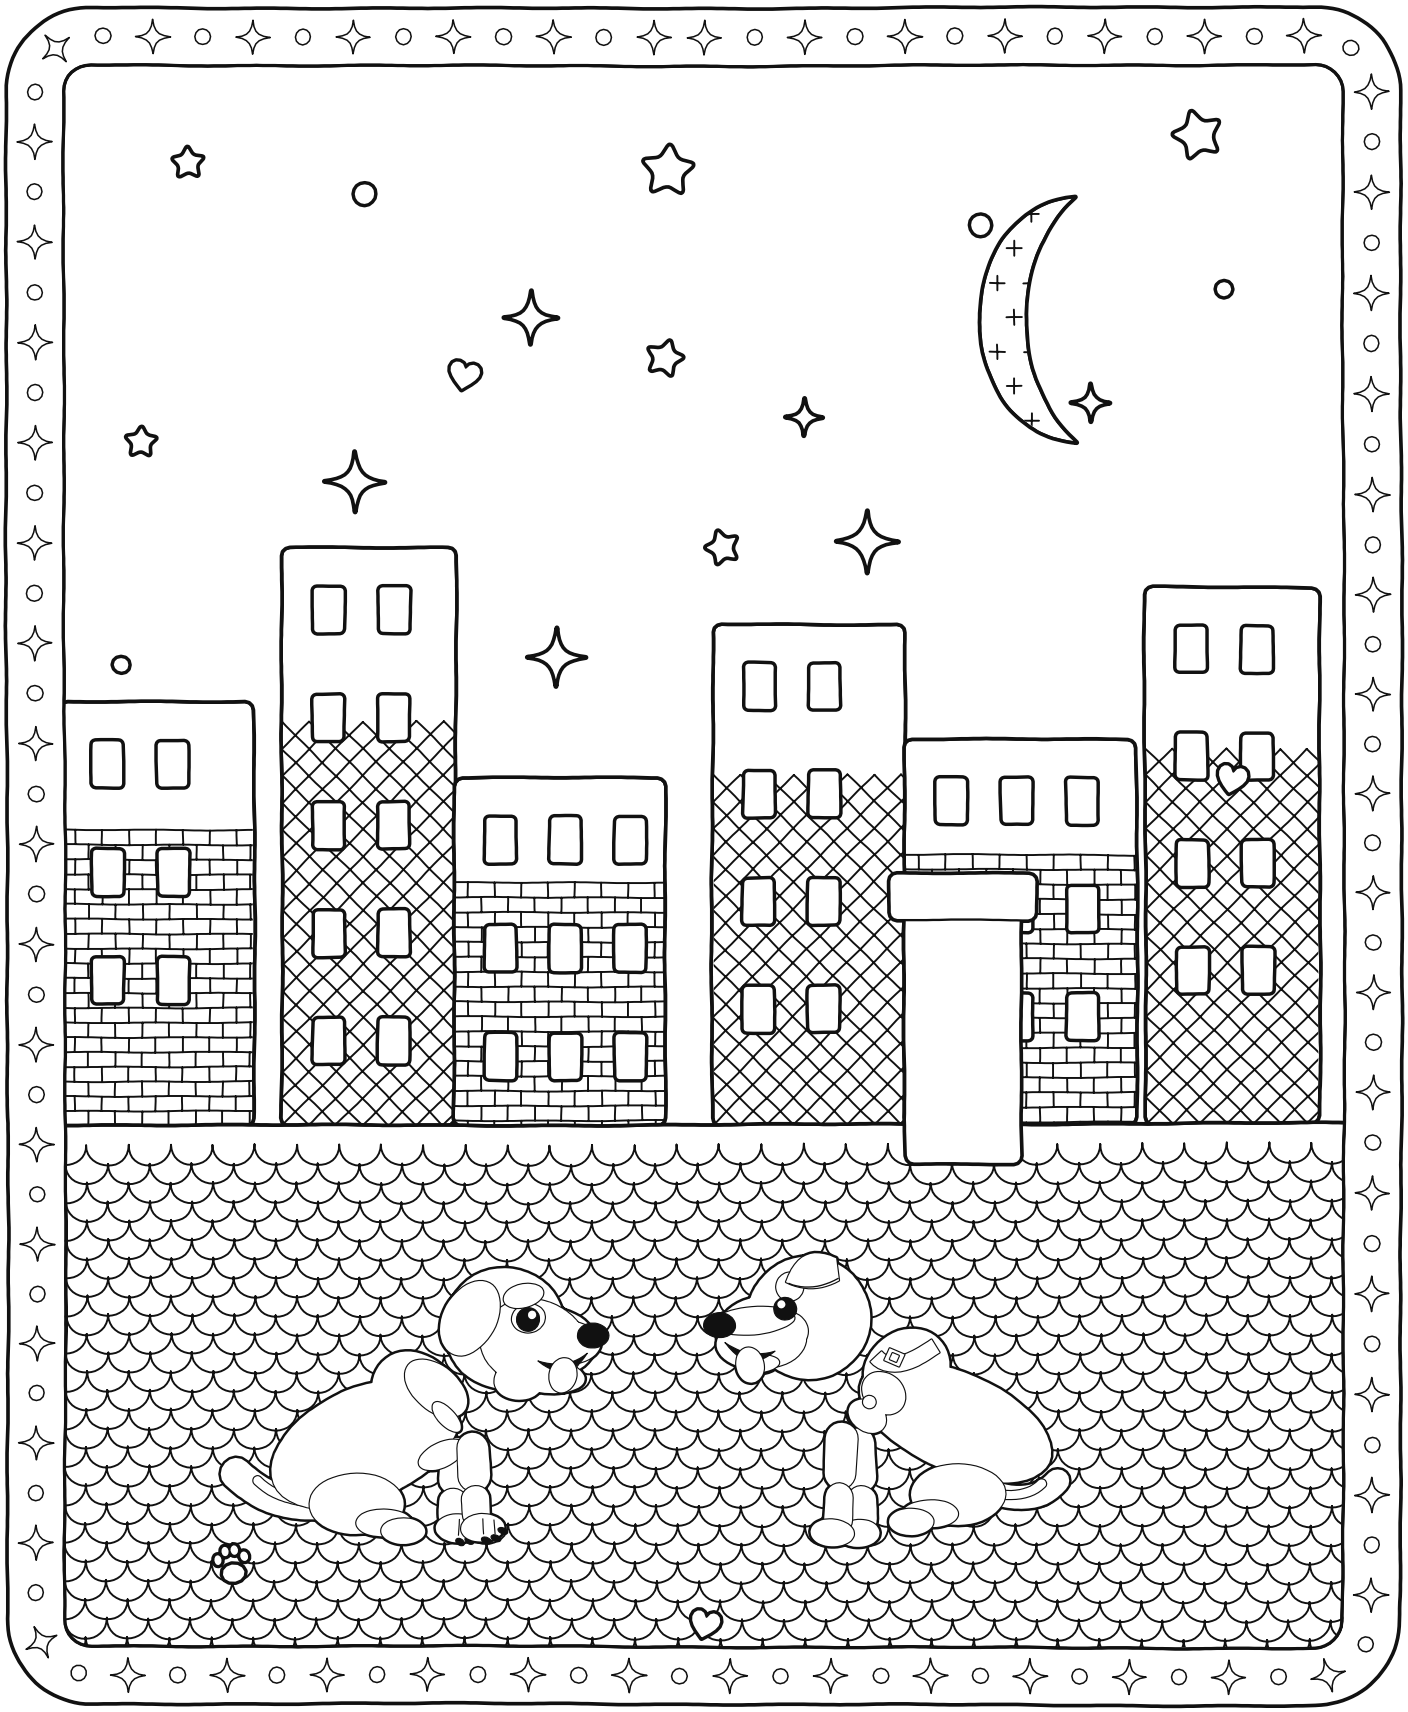

Still water, still mind. Take your time.

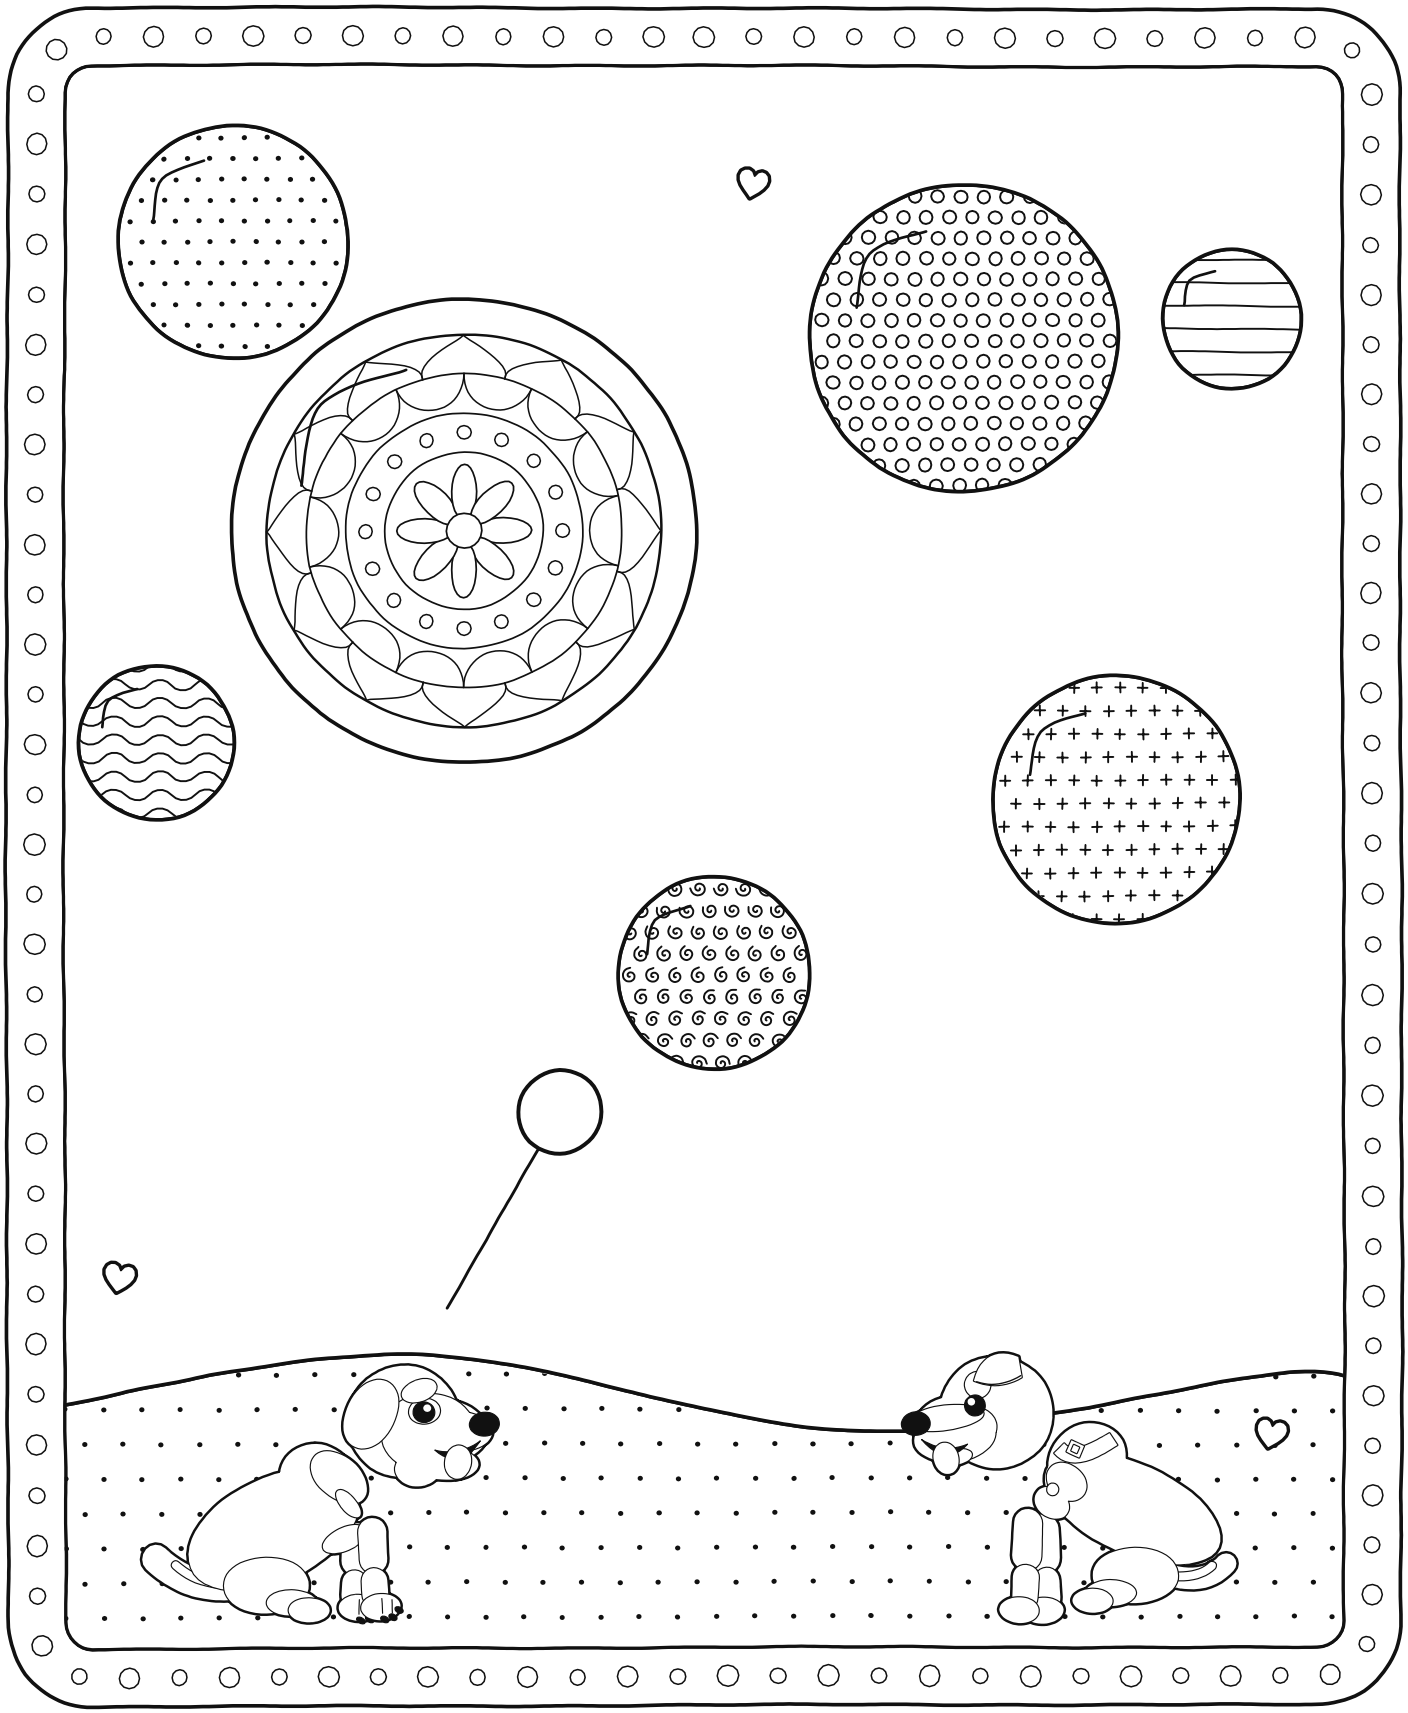

Move your shoulders. Let the music in.

Plants grow slowly. So do you.

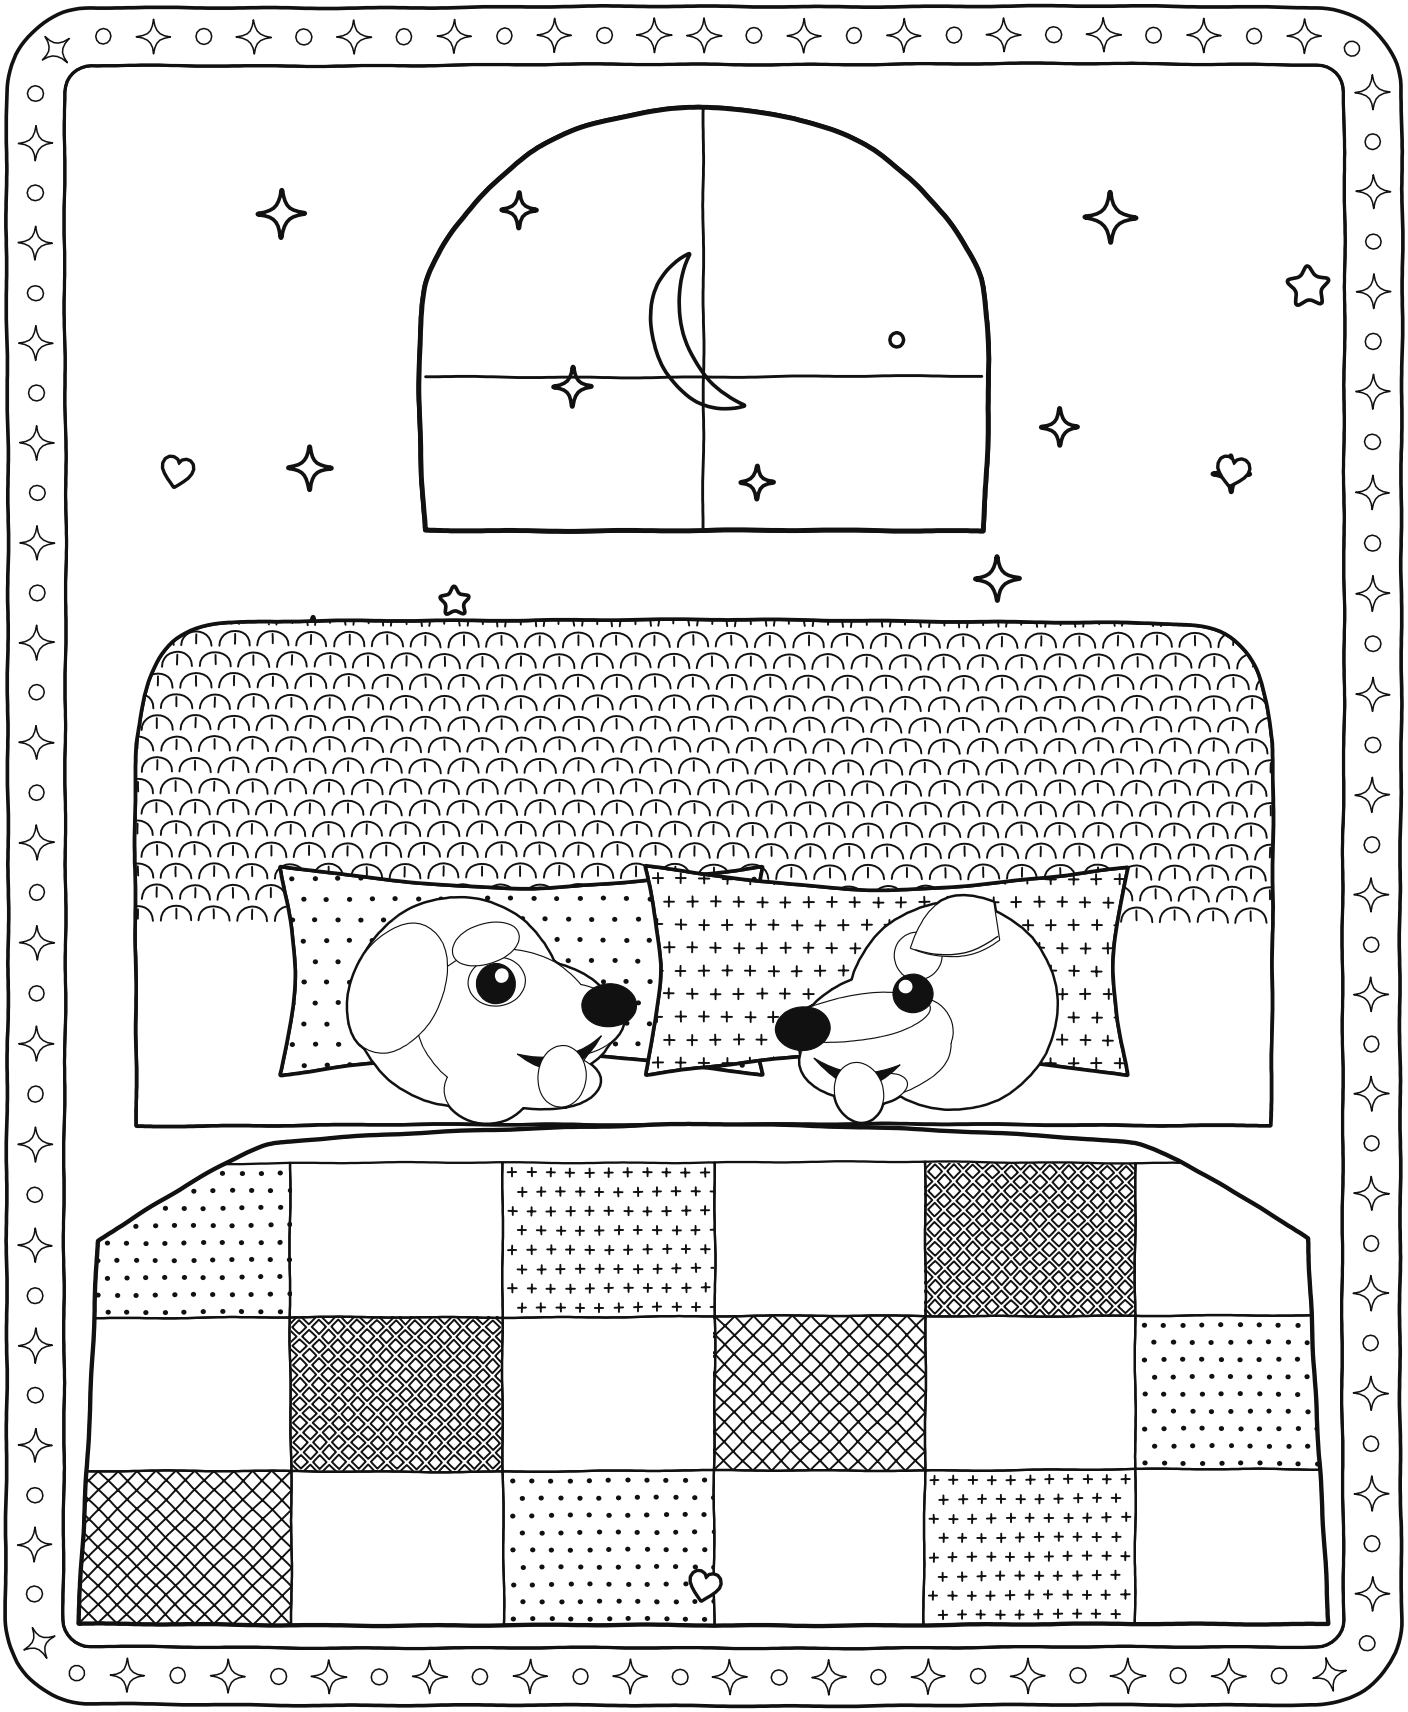

From up here, small things look small.

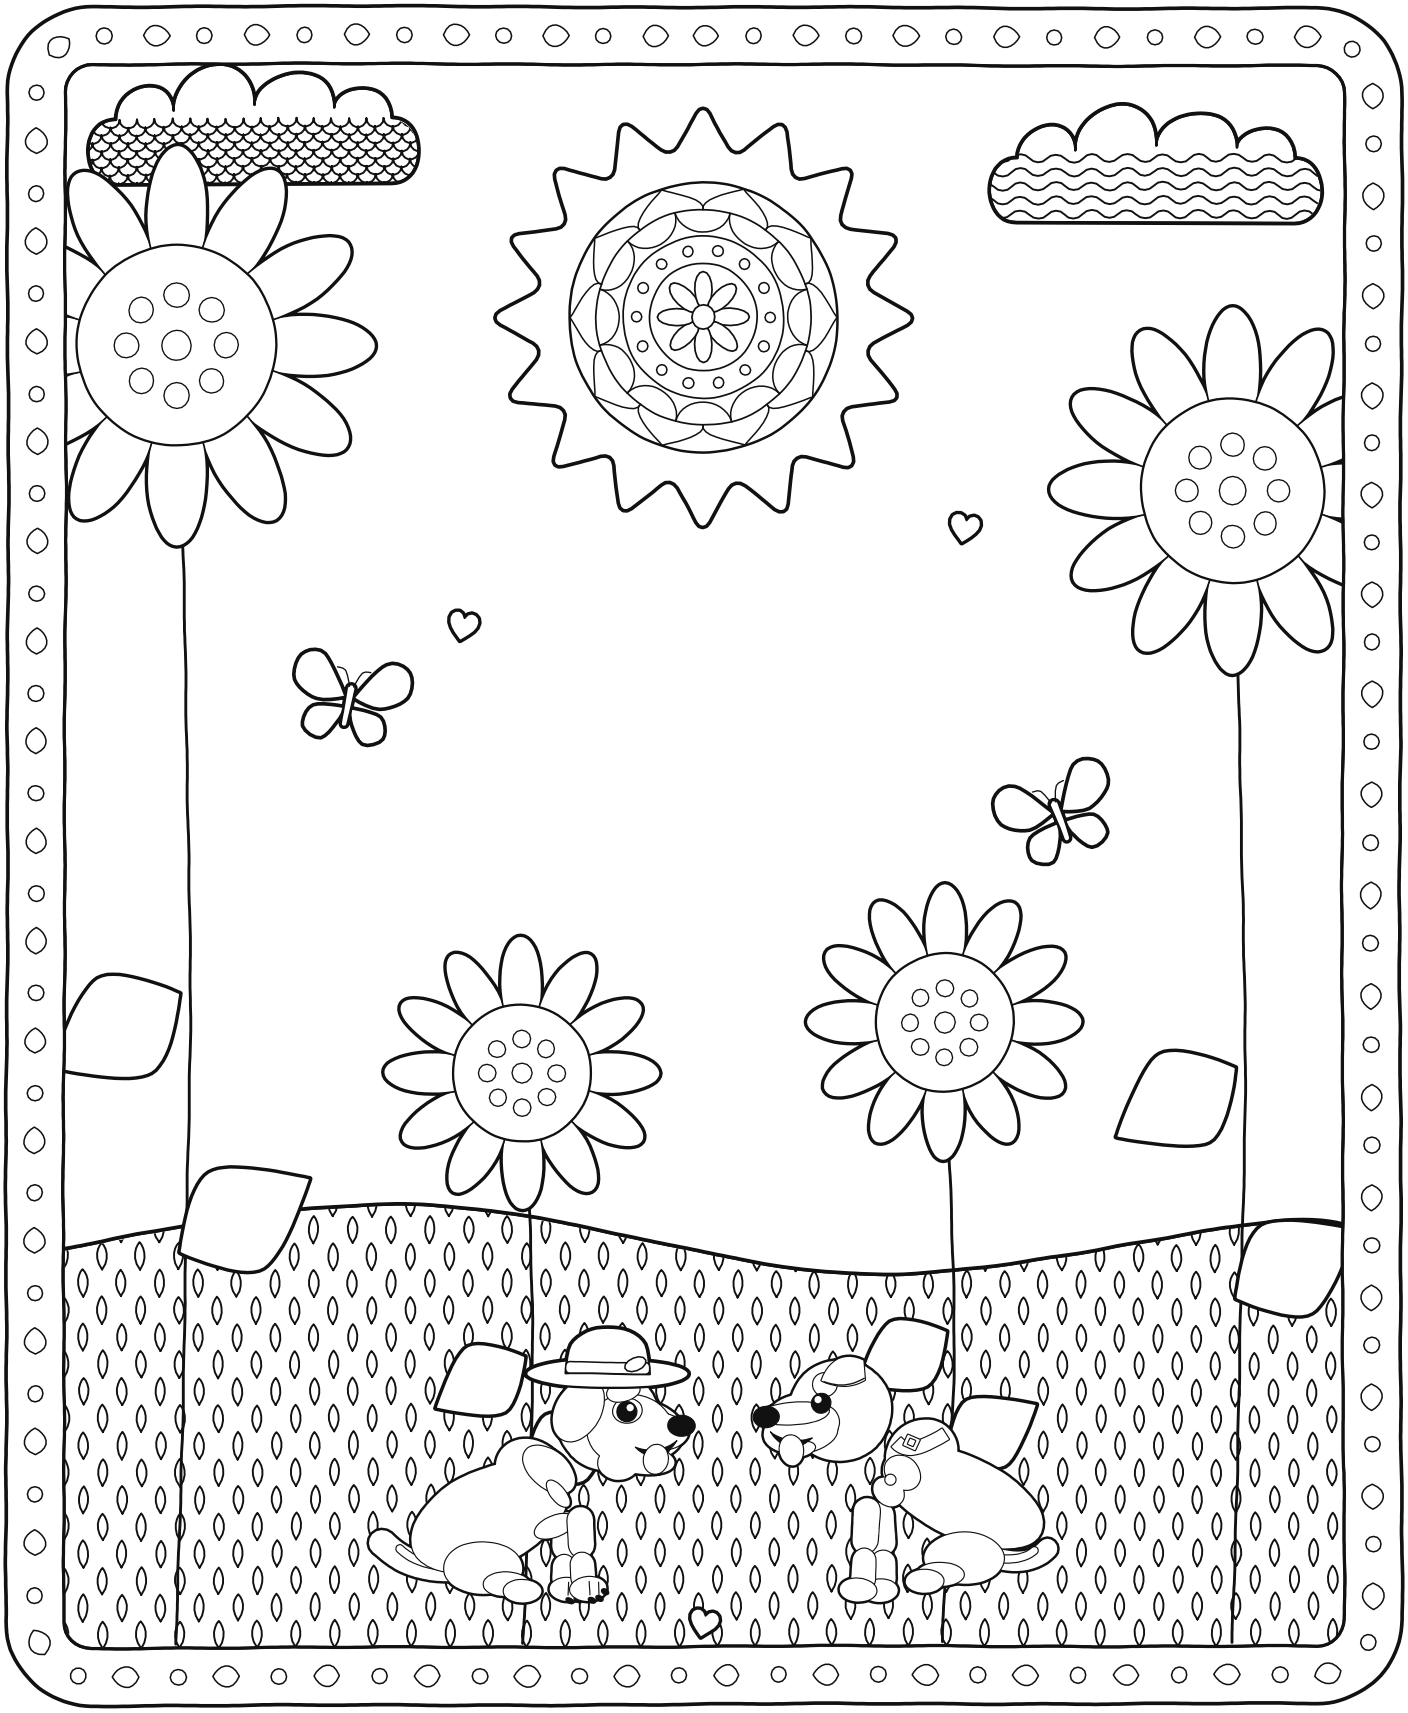

Blow out slowly. Watch the bubble float.

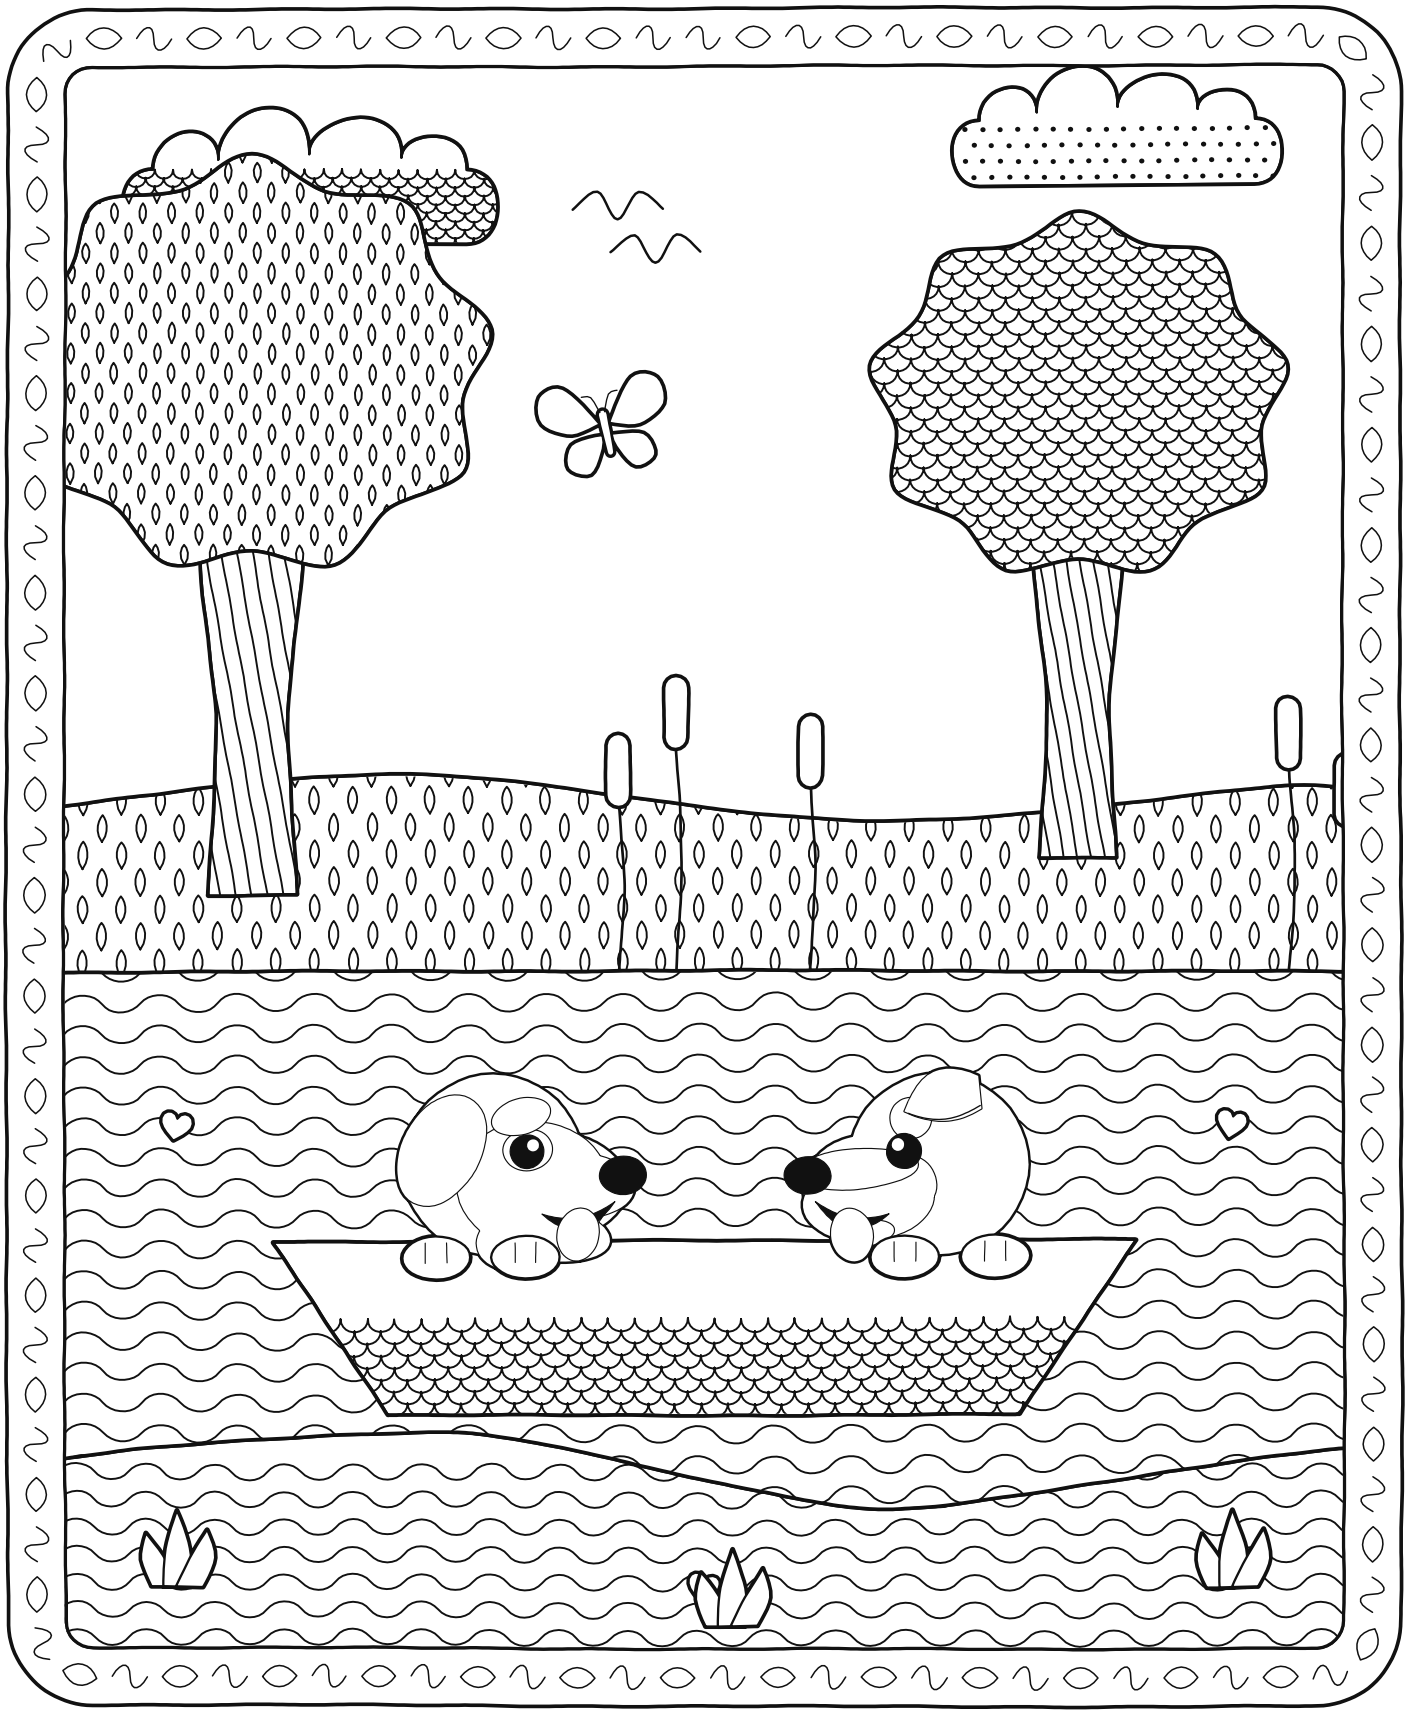

Shake it up, then watch it settle.

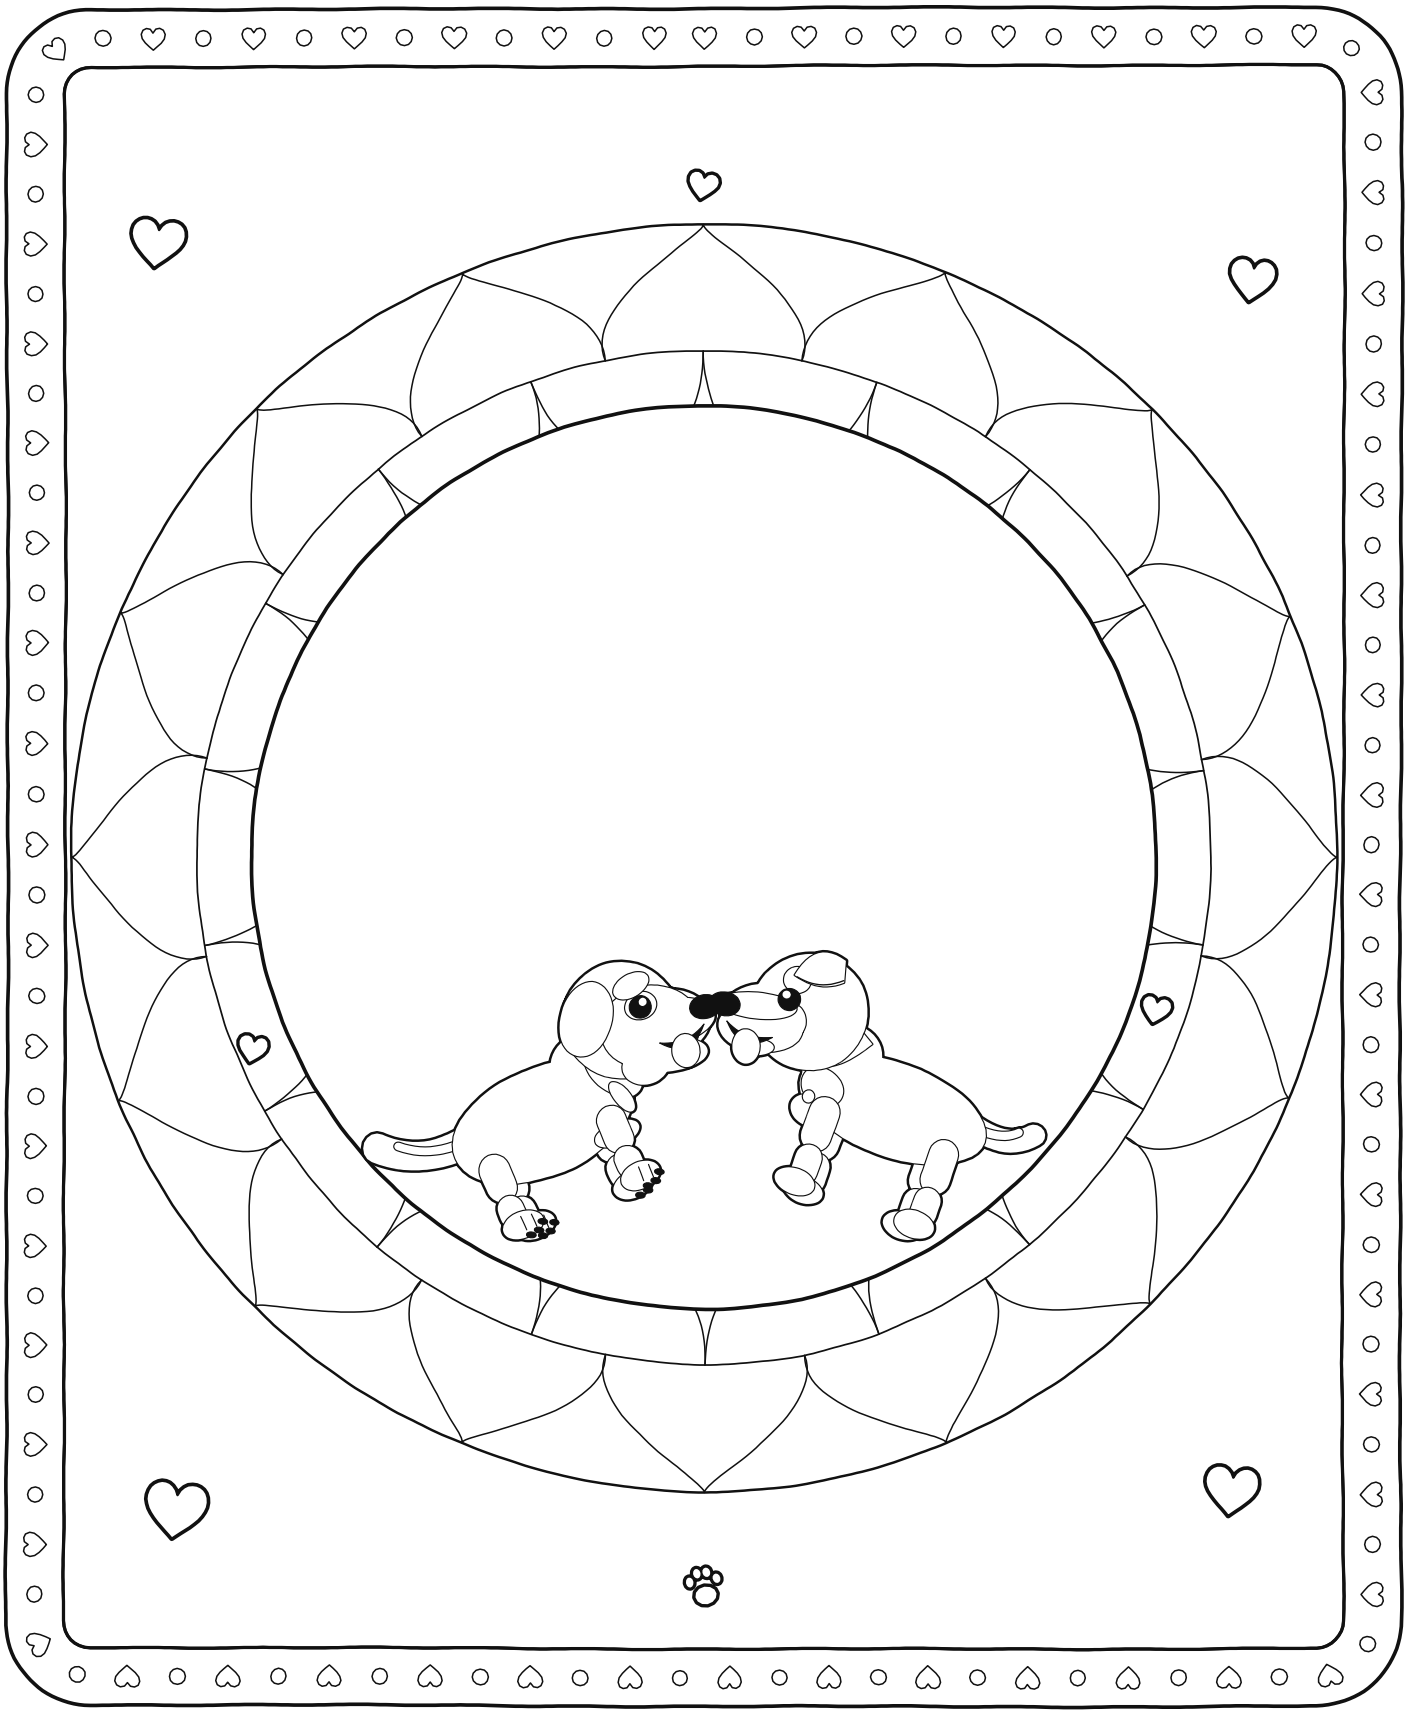

Fold the day up. Tuck it in. Goodnight.

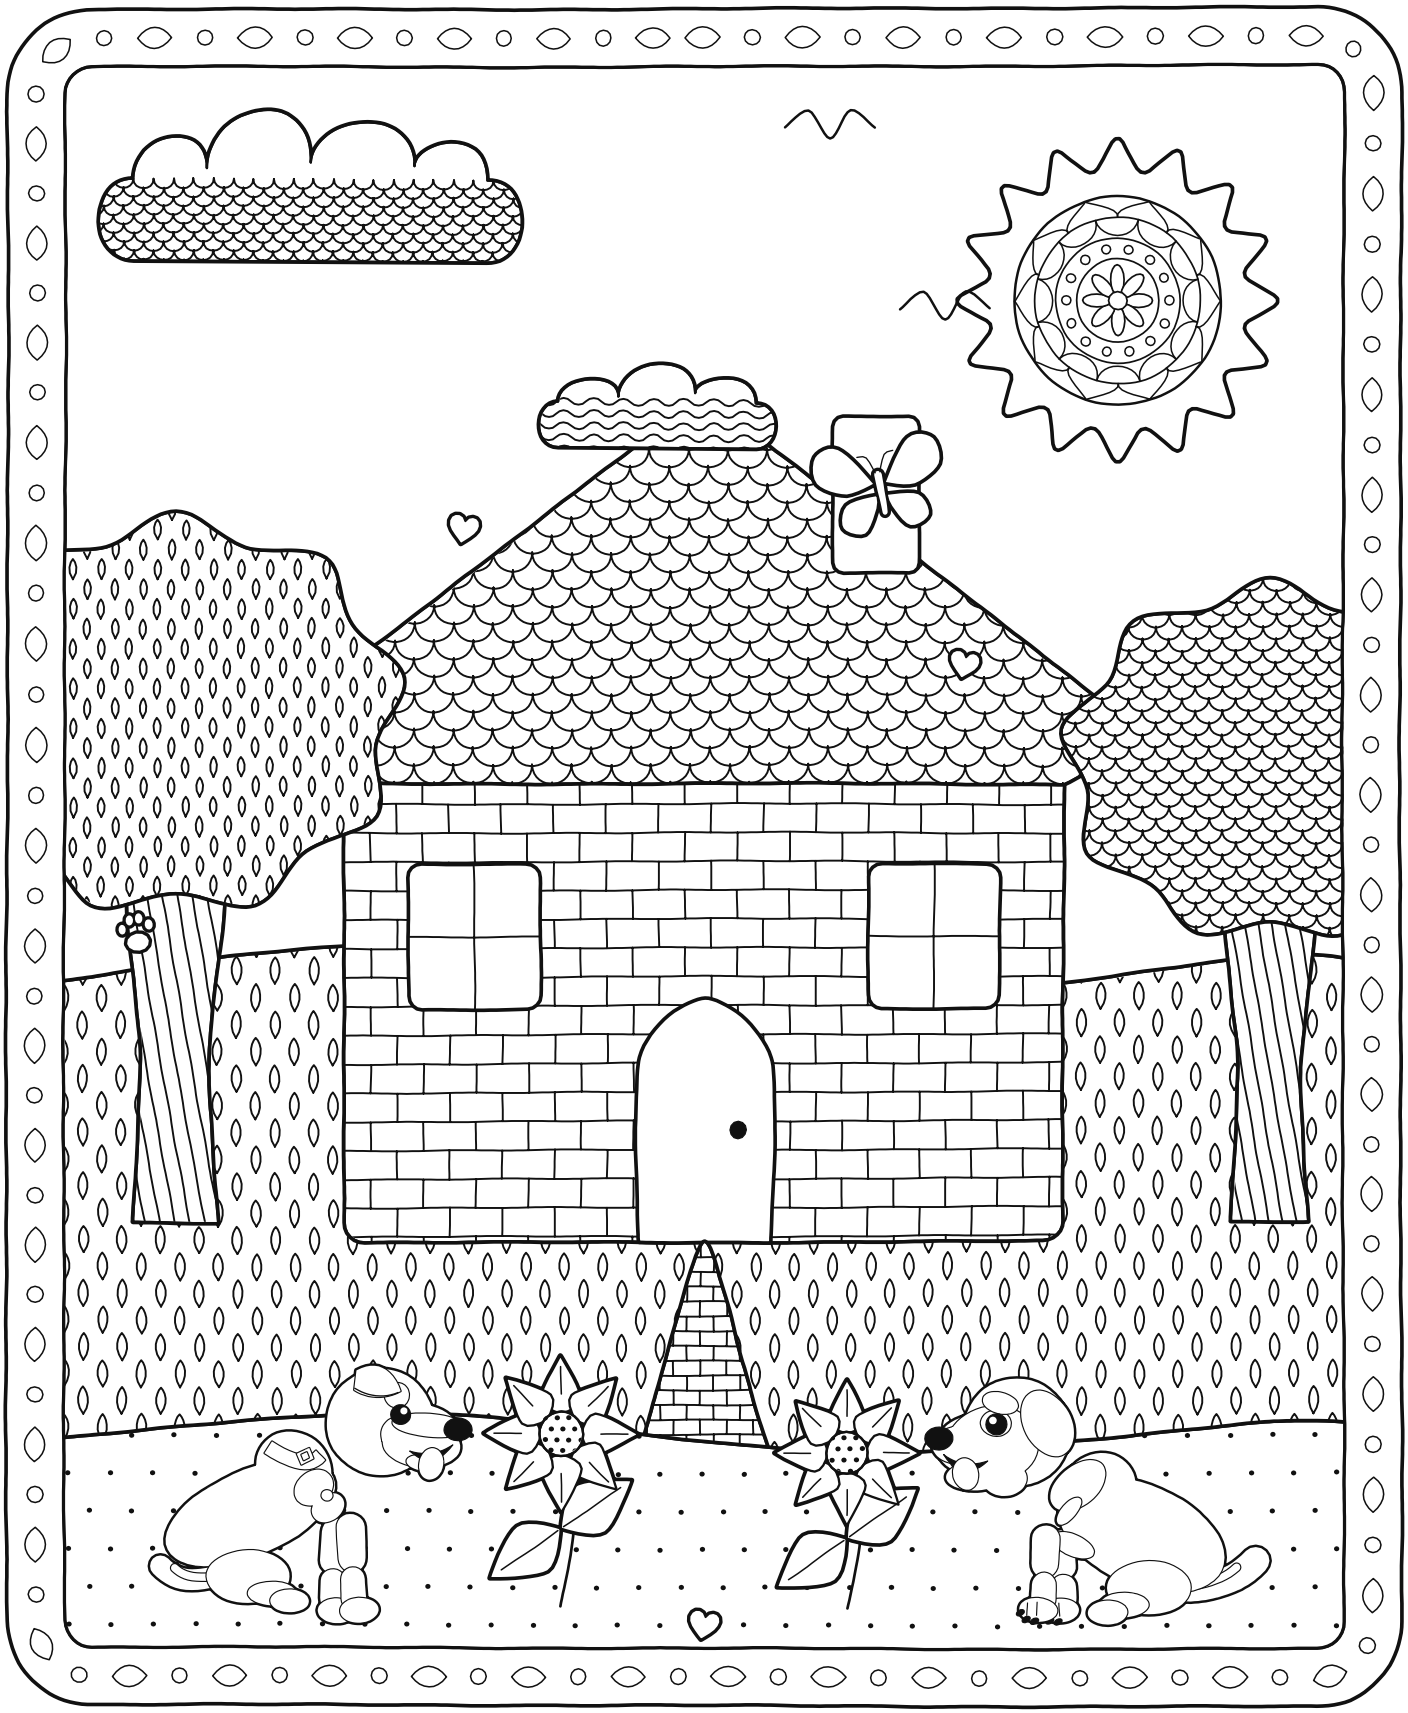

Turn your face toward what feels warm.

Drift along. You do not have to paddle.

A hug is a good place to breathe.

You are home. Take a deep breath.

Well done
